JAPAN TO ORDER CHINESE RECALL OF JEHOL FORCE

Troops Menace Peace Is Expected as Reason for Ultimatum.

REASONABLE TIME TO BE GIVEN FOR EXODUS

Nanking, Former Manchuria Head and Disputed Area's Chief, to Be Warned.

Peiping, China, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The Japanese government will shortly serve a series of ultimatums on the Chinese demanding the withdrawal of all Chinese troops from the province of Jehol, which the Japanese intend to conquer within the next few months and merge with the state of Manchukuo, established with their assistance in Manchuria.

The ultimatums, the Japanese legation revealed today, will be served on Chang Hsiao-Liang, whom they ousted as governor of Manchuria more than a year ago, and who is now the military commander charged with the defense of China's northern boundary; on Tang Yu-Lin, the governor of Jehol, and on the Nanking government.

A reasonable time for the withdrawal of Chinese troops will be allowed, it was said at the legation. Whether the ultimatums will be presented simultaneously or at intervals was not divulged.

Menace to Peace.

Expectations are that the Japanese will contend, in the warnings, that Jehol is an integral part of Manchukuo, and that the presence of Chinese troops in the province is a menace to peace.

Lieut. Gen. Kotaro Nakamura, Japanese commander in the North China area, probably will serve the notice o Marshal Chang. The Jehol governor will receive his warning through the Manchukuo government, and the ultimatum to Nanking will be presented through Tokyo.

Seizure of Shanhaikwan.

A legation spokesman said that the warnings will point out that Japan pledged herself to assist in maintaining peace in Jehol in the treaty between the Japanese government and Manchukuo.

(The Japanese prepared the way for their Jehol campaign several weeks ago when they seized the Chinese city of Shanhaikwan, at the eastern end of the Great Wall of China, and Chiumenkow, a pass through the wall about 12 miles north of Shanhaikwan. The purpose of these operations was to hinder Chinese troop movements from below the Great Wall into Jehol, which lies between China proper and Manchuria.)

Mounted Police Guard Jail as Disorder Looms

Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Authorities, fearing an outbreak among inmates of the county jail here, today stationed Royal Canadian Mounted Police around the building.

Student Flier Is Killed As Plane Falls in Texas

Marathon, Tex., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Cadet Paul Vair, student flier at Kelly Field, near San Antonio, was killed when his pursuit plane crashed half a mile east of Marathon today. His home was at Lenox, Tenn.

Residents here noticed that the motor of the plane was not functioning properly. After circling about town, the plane took a nose dive from an altitude estimated at 500 feet.

Massie Note

Wife of Naval Lieutenant Sends Mystery Message to Honolulu.

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Thalia Massie, who accused four men of mixed blood of a criminal attack upon her in Hawaii, said today she was positive of the identification she made at that time.

Her reiteration of the identifications follows the action of the prosecution in Honolulu yesterday dropping the case against the accused men.

"I sent an important cablegram to Honolulu today," she said in her apartment at East Lansdowne, near here. "When I receive a reply to this I may have something startling to say."

Mrs. Massie, wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, who is stationed aboard the battleship New Mexico at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, declined to make public her message.

Speaking of the report of a detective agency that an investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of her assailants, she said she would prefer not to offer any public defense of her identifications until she received a reply to her message.

This was Mrs. Massie's birthday and she remarked that the dropping of the case against the accused men was an "awful birthday present."

COLOMBIA RECALLS HER ENVOY TO PERU

Diplomatic Relations End After Bomb Raid on Boat Near Leticia.

Bogota, Colombia, (Wednesday) Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The government today ordered Fabio Lozano, jr., Colombian Minister at Lima, Peru, to demand passports for his departure from that country.

Bogota, Colombia, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The conflict between Colombia and Peru, which has been smoldering five and a half months while both sides assembled materials of warfare, broke into open hostilities today with an air battle near the border City of Leticia, the cause of the controversy.

Alfredo Vasques Cobo, commander of the Colombian forces in the field, informed Bogota that Peruvian airplanes bombed the Colombian gunboat Cordoba in the Putumayo River and were driven off by a Colombian air squadron.

"Our planes were magnificent," the commander said in a message to his superiors here in the capital.

Bogota street crowds received news of the first actual conflict with frantic applause. "Down with Peru!" they shouted. "Long live Colombia!"

The action took place at a point near the boundaries of Brazil, Colombia and Peru. The Colombian commander reported that the first bomb dropped by the Peruvians landed in Brazilian waters.

The Colombian planes heard artillery fire and rushed to the defense from their field near Ipiranga, Commander Vasques Cobo reported, and after a brief but violent fight the Peruvian air squadron was forced to retire.

As soon as street demonstrations started in Bogota the police placed a guard at the Peruvian Legation.

It was unofficially reported late this afternoon that Colombian troops had captured the City of Tarapaca on the Putumayo River in the vicinity of Leticia.

Ely Balks Virginia Extradition Effort

Crawford's Lawyer Wins Delay for Conference With Governor.

Boston, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Gov. Ely today delayed the possibility of extradition to Virginia of George Crawford, alleged Negro slayer, in order to give Crawford's counsel further hearing. Ely said a report from Stephen A. Bacigalupo, assistant attorney general who conducted hearings on Virginia's request for extradition, was "unfavorable toward the prisoner."

Ely said he would not make public the contents of Bacigalupo's report until after J. Weston Allen, who represented Crawford at the extradition hearings, had had his requested opportunity to speak to the governor personally in regard to the case. Ely said no date had been set for the conference.

Crawford is charged with having beaten Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Nina Buckner, to death at Middleburg, Va., on January 13, 1932.

Matson, Named Minister To Greece, Dies in West

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Roderick Nathaniel Matson, nominated last week by President Hoover to be minister to Greece, died unexpectedly at his home here today. He had been ill since Friday.

RAILS PROBERS URGE MERGERS AND RATE CUTS

Committee Says Outlook Far From Hopeless; New Era Seen.

ST. LAWRENCE PLAN VIEWED SKEPTICALLY

Groupings to Avoid Waste, Looking to Single System Is Urged.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—A new era in transportation, with regulation directed toward the most efficient service at the lowest competitive cost, is envisaged in the report of the National Transportation Committee, published tonight.

This report, the result of more than four months of work, most of which was under the direction of the late Calvin Coolidge, has been anxiously awaited by investors in the Nation's $20,000,000,000 railroad system, who invited formation of the committee to seek solutions for the vexed transportation problem.

The committee's conclusions—based on one of the most thorough surveys that ever has been made of America's transport facilities by a nonpartisan body—find the outlook for the roads "far from hopeless," but assert that rates can not be based on obsolete capital structures, nor can competing forms of transportation be handicapped for the benefit of the railroads.

Consolidation Is Urged.

The committee urges sweeping consolidation of the roads, on a regional basis, to eliminate vast and wasteful duplication of facilities and services, and that these groupings be enforced by governmental action where necessary, looking eventually to a single national system.

As an emergency measure, facilitation of reorganizations where necessary to reduce unwieldy and uneconomic capital structures, is urged, by revision of bankruptcy procedure. No broadening of the lending powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is found necessary, although the committee points out that "adequate security" for loans does not necessarily mean "marketable collateral."

Railroad management is taken to task for not using or for seeking to combat such competing forms of transportation as trucks and airplanes, and are severely criticized for seeking Government aid without having first cooperated to eliminate wasteful competition and otherwise having taken advantage of all possible economies.

Memorandum by Smith.

The report of the committee is signed by Bernard M. Baruch, who as vice chairman succeeded to the

Senate Stock Committee Opens Insull Case Today

(Associated Press.)

After months of preliminary work, Senate stock market investigators are ready to open today what they hail as the "biggest case" they have ever had—an inquiry into the collapse of the vast Insull utilities empire.

Chairman Norbeck announced yesterday, as he and his aids completed arrangements for the inquiry, that the first witness would be Samuel Insull, jr., son of the former magnate, who now is living in Greece. The biggest figures in Chicago banking have been subpenaed to appear later, including Charles G. Dawes and Melvin A. Traylor.

Saved Bishop Tells Of Battle to Live

Pitiful Shipwreck Tale of Twelve Lives Lost Is Told by Prelate.

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Bishop Antonin Pokrovsky was rescued tonight by the Bureau of Fisheries ship Penguin, and told a pitiful story of how 12 persons on the shipwrecked trading vessel Umnak Native died by freezing and drowning.

The distinguished Alaskan prelate of the Russian Orthodox Church was found by natives yesterday, seriously frostbitten and suffering from long exposure after the shipwreck January 24. Today the Penguin, with a doctor, reached the bishop, who is more than 70 years old.

Only 3 others of the 16 aboard the Umnak Native survived, and they struggled to a village after days of suffering and hunger.

Farley Begins Drive On $750,000 Deficit

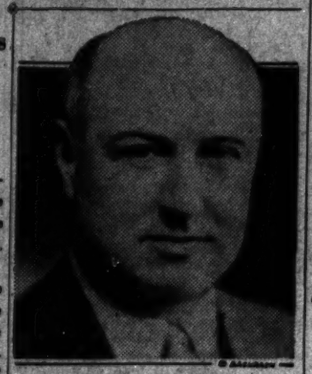
Bluntly Asks Democrats to Remit Before March 4.



JAMES A. FARLEY.

(Associated Press.)

A plain-spoken bid was issued yesterday for $750,000 to wipe out the Democratic party's deficit in the three weeks remaining before Franklin D. Roosevelt enters the White House.

James A. Farley, chairman of the National Committee and probable Postmaster General and patronage dispenser for the new administration, announced a drive to make it possible for the new President to start in with "no obligations embarrassing his party."

Farley minced no words. He said campaign contributions should be collected before presidential appointments to offices are made—so as to "avoid even the appearance of a bargain."

The bigger contributions, he argued, logically will come from the class of men who have demonstrated skill and ability in private affairs. Because of this evidence of ability, this class also will be drawn upon by Mr. Roosevelt in choosing assistants.

Farley said he saw no reason for being "mealy-mouthed" about the question, especially "with an incoming administration that purposes to be entirely frank with the people."

"We are all familiar," he said, "with the recurring scandal of what amounts to a sale of important offices of the Government.

"The President must be left free to select the best material in his party for the various positions in the Government that must be filled. Justly or unjustly, when the appointment of a conspicuous individual is followed by the announcement of a large campaign contribution, the public is prone to assume a connection between the two incidents. This circumstance might very well embarrass both the President and the appointee."

Farley disclosed that a major part of the deficit to be cleared off was a heritage from the Smith-Raskob-Shouse administration of the party. The 1932 campaign, he said, left a deficit of only $300,000, while at the end of 1928 the deficit was approximately twice the outstanding $750,000.

DEPOSITORS' RELIEF PROVIDED IN DETROIT

$25,000,000 to Be Released Tomorrow; 8-Day Holiday Is Declared.

Detroit, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Temporary relief for Michigan bank depositors whose funds are tied up by the eight-day emergency banking holiday was arranged tonight by the Detroit Clearing House Association, with the announcement that $25,000,000 would be released on Thursday.

The plan will permit depositors to withdraw not in excess of 5 per cent of their balances to tide them over until the lifting of the moratorium proclaimed before dawn today by Gov. William A. Comstock.

While the Clearing House Association's action applies specifically to Detroit, belief was expressed that most of the out-State banks would adopt similar plans. The emergency measure made no reference to industrial pay rolls, but most of the large corporations in the metropolitan area already have arranged to meet pay rolls with cash brought from outside the State.

The clearing house announcement came a few hours after Gov. Comstock had expressed the belief that relief for the State's 900,000 depositors, with

Senator Copeland's Father Dies at 97

Dexter, Mich., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Roscoe P. Copeland, father of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, died here at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon.

He was 97 years old.

(Associated Press.)

Senator and Mrs. Copeland left for Michigan last night to attend the funeral tomorrow of the senator's father, Roscoe Pulaski Copeland, who died late yesterday.

STEP MADE IN HOUSE FOR D. C. TAX SLASH

Smith Argues Restriction on Reduction Is Subject to Point of Order.

A point of order against legislative restrictions blocking lowered real estate and tangible personal property taxes in the District, unexpectedly was made in the House yesterday by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia.

His point, if sustained, would permit the District Commissioners to cut under the existing $1.70 general property tax rate, and draw on the mounting District surplus.

The move was made late yesterday, immediately after the House concluded general debate on the battered District appropriations bill, and began reading the measure. Decision on the point was reserved until today.

Although the restriction has been in the District appropriations bill for several years, Representative Smith argues it is clearly legislation on an appropriation bill, and as such, subject to a point of order.

The provision is contained in the first paragraph of the bill, the farthest point reached during yesterday's reading. Representative Smith, Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, and others, are prepared to raise a point of order to a provision in the second paragraph of the bill, increasing the District tax

Ten Upper Silesia Coal Workers Buried Alive

Hindenburg, Upper Silesia, Germany, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Ten miners were entombed tonight when a shaft in a coal mine in which they were working collapsed.

Rescue workers reported they heard signal taps from two of the victims.

House Bill Today to Ask Food for District Pupils

Representative McLeod, Planning Action, Charges Desperate Conditions in Some Classrooms; $40,000 Appropriation to Be Sought.

Appropriation of $40,000 to supply hot soup, milk and other foods to undernourished District school children, will be proposed today in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Clarence J. McLeod (Republican), Michigan, who charges "desperate" conditions in some local classrooms.

The McLeod bill, a companion measure to another bill authorizing Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans for child relief on a national scale, will be referred to the House District Committee. The national relief measure will go to the House Banking and Currency Committee.

The local bill would authorize the District health officer to examine and determine which of the school children in the District are in need of food, and to purchase, prepare and distribute such food. The District Commissioners would appoint any additional medical inspectors necessary to carry out the provisions of the measure.

"Of the approximately 80,000 school children in the District, it is estimated that more than 5,000 are in desperate need of adequate nourishment," Representative McLeod said.

"It has been brought to my attention that children have fainted in their classrooms from sheer weakness brought about by lack of food. A meal consisting of milk, bread and butter and soup containing meat can be furnished for but 6 cents a child.

"In the face of present conditions, and the emergency confronting us, it is manifestly impossible for these children to be cared for through the regular and established relief channels.

"It is estimated that over 6,000,000 school children throughout the United States are in a malnourished condition and it is our sacred obligation to administer to their needs in this time of stress."

ODDIE OPPOSES SAVINGS ITEMS IN SUPPLY BILL

But Has Little Support in Treasury-Postal Stand.

A. F. L. SCORES PLAN FOR 5 PER CENT CUT

Green Tells Senators More Idleness Lies in Bratton Amendment.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Opposition to sweeping economy provisions in the Treasury-Postoffice bill yesterday broke out at the first conference on the measure when Senate Subcommittee Chairman Tasker L. Oddie voiced dissatisfaction with items in the $165,000,000 retrenchment rider.

Senator Oddie, who is openly opposed to 5 per cent departmental appropriation cuts and other economy provisions, will yield charge of the bill this morning to Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the Senate Economy Committee.

Conferees plan to take up next the economy provisions, item by item, after which they will go back to controversial, but strictly Treasury-Postoffice features, passed over yesterday. Among these is the $19,000,000 for airmail contracts, stricken from the bill by the Senate.

Supply Bill Provisions.

Members decided Senator Oddie will handle the supply bill provisions, and Senator Bingham the economy items. These latter were touched on only briefly yesterday. Senator Oddie told conferees he opposes several of the provisions.

But the Nevadan is badly outnumbered in his opposition. He will get practically no support from the Senate conferees, and probably just as little from the House group.

Each member, however, received a letter yesterday from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, asserting that the Bratton 5 per cent amendment will "further aggravate the existing unemployment situation." The labor chieftain, who is among those mentioned for the Roosevelt Labor portfolio, called personally on a number of the conferees at the Capitol.

Contradiction Is Seen.

"It is inconceivable that Congress would knowingly contribute by legislative enactment to the sum total of human distress which now prevails throughout the Nation as a result of widespread unemployment," he said.

Mr. Green declared it would be contradictory procedure for Congress first to throw thousands out of work and then appropriate millions to feed and care for those who are idle.

Among the issues which will come up today when the conferees begin consideration of the economy provisions is Senator James F. Byrnes' amendment, giving the incoming President almost absolute authority to reorganize the Government, transfer and abolish bureaus.

Guy Denies Yacht Visit As He Finishes Defense

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—William James Guy, at the crisis of the greatest adventure of his roving career, brought his defense to a close here today with a denial on the witness stand that he visited the yacht Carma on the night its skipper, the Globe-trotting Walter Wanderwell, was shot and killed there.

After a day of arguments it was expected the fantastic case would be in the hands of the jury late tomorrow.

Mortgage Holiday Forced by Crowd

Farmers in Illinois Stop Foreclosure Against Elderly Man.

Kankakee, Ill., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—A crowd of farmers stopped mortgage foreclosure proceedings in the Kankakee County Courthouse today and forced a master of chancery and an attorney for the Federal Joint Stock Land Bank of St. Louis to agree to their terms.

Stopping an action against James Mulligan, elderly farmer near Essex, the crowd, which was estimated at 500 persons, milled around the courthouse and obtained a two-year moratorium on payments on the mortgage.

The agreement reached also brought a reduction from 7 to 5 per cent in interest on Mulligan's mortgage and a reduction of the principal from $6,000 to $5,000. Mulligan agreed to return to the bank the $438 stock he held.

SENATE READY TO VOTE TODAY ON DRY REPEAL

Accord Won After Filibuster of Sheppard.

TEXAN TALKS FOR 8½ HOURS

Blaine Predicts Some Sort of Motion Will Pass.

By J. BERNARD M'DONNELL.

The first wet-dry filibuster of this session of Congress collapsed in the Senate at 10 o'clock last night when Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican), Oregon, chief lieutenant of the Republicans, announced that unanimous consent had been gained to have a vote at 1 p. m. today on the motion of Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, to consider repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The agreement came at the end of an eight-and-a-half-hour filibustering speech by Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, who is gray-haired, mild-mannered, but has the mark of the zealot about him and is proud of his description as the father of the prohibition amendment.

Antiprohibitionists in the Senate hailed collapse of the very frank filibuster launched by Senator Sheppard as a signal victory. Senator Sheppard began talking at 1:30 p. m. yesterday and held the floor continuously, reading a 10-year-old speech, revived for the occasion, about the infitesimal details about sessions of the League of Nations.

None Pays Attention.

Prohibition advocates had made a brace showing throughout the day behind the bulwark of Senator Sheppard's carefully timed reading of his speech, to which none paid any attention.

Those who wanted the Senate to consider the repeal question had been given aid and comfort by the elected leaders on both sides. Senator James E. Watson (Republican), Indiana, had inquired of Senator Blaine how long he intended to keep the Senate in session and Mr. Blaine had replied all night if he could. Earlier, Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, minority leader, had assailed a motion by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, to have laid on the table the Blaine proposal.

What will be the outcome of the vote at 1 p. m. today is problematical. Friends of Senator Blaine predicted the Senate today will pass some sort of repeal resolution. Senator Blaine last night refused to discuss the probable outcome of the battle. But the disposition of the antiprohibitionists to force the fight was made evident by others. Having shown their strength last night by holding the Senate in session and forcing a collapse of the filibuster, the antiprohibitionists are not inclined to forego their advantage today and it may be that there will be another long session of the Senate tonight, extending far into the night.

Tydings' Move Beaten.

How effective the Sheppard filibuster seemed late in the afternoon is indicated by the fact that Senator Tydings persuaded Senator Sheppard to yield the floor to him to offer a motion to table Senator Blaine's motion to take up the repeal resolution.

The Tydings surprise move, the purpose of which obviously was to put the wets in the position of forgoing a vote on prohibition if it was

SCORES P. U. C.

RICHMOND B. KEECH.

TAXI METER ORDERS UNDER DOUBLE FIRE

Keech Hurls New Broadside at P. U. C. as Latter Answers Blanton.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech yesterday fired another broadside at the Public Utilities Commission's order requiring taxicabs to install meters, while the commission attempted to answer in a formal statement an attack by Representative Tom Blanton on Monday in the House.

Filing his brief in the litigation started more than a year ago by the Bell and the City Cab Corporations, Mr. Keech, as intervenor and stanch defender of the zone system of operation, attacked the commission's order on numerous grounds. His brief constitutes an appeal to the Court of Appeals from the decision of the District Supreme Court upholding the commission's unenforced order.

Without mentioning Representative Blanton's name, the commission's statement reviews briefly the history of its efforts to force taxicabs to adopt meters and then cites that there were 8,000 traffic accidents in Washington in 1932 and an average of ten persons killed each month "owing to the congestion in the streets."

"The commission has consistently sought authority to require financial responsibility on the part of owners and operators of taxicabs," the statement reads, "the court having held it was without such authority, but has been unsuccessful, the Congress from which such authority must be obtained having failed to act upon the commission's recommendation.

"The commission considers the present taxicab situation, unregulated, with the resulting congestion and accident record, most deplorable and one which should be remedied. The responsibility for it, however, must rest squarely upon those who blocked the commission in its efforts to bring order out of chaos."

The House only recently reinserted

Roosevelt Field Fire Loss $100,000

Five Wooden Hangars and Eight Amphibian Craft Are Destroyed.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Feb. 14. (A.P.).—Fire swept five wooden hangars today, destroying eight amphibian planes for a total loss estimated by fire officials at $100,000. The fire broke out in Hangar G and spread rapidly to the four other hangars.

Because the field was covered with snow there were no workers at the airport today except for the administration office staff.

Assistance was summoned from nearby villages, but by the time the equipment arrived the planes had been destroyed. The firemen immediately set to work removing other planes from nearby hangars. Most of the ruined ships were privately owned, it was said at the field office.

Hoover Calls Senate For Inaugural Rites

(Associated Press.)

By executive proclamation, President Hoover yesterday called the Senate to meet in special session at noon on March 4, a customary procedure to permit the inauguration of the Vice President and the confirmation of the Cabinet and other appointments of the new President.

The Senate to meet after noon of March 4 will be devoid of lame ducks, with the senators elected at the last election taking their places.

ROOSEVELT TO PUSH WORK UPON CABINET

Glass, Farley, Walsh, Woodin and Miss Perkins Seen as Certainties.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt is expected to give his immediate attention upon return from the seas tomorrow to final determination of his Cabinet. Among his first callers probably will be Senator Glass, of Virginia, who is slated for Secretary of the Treasury.

It is believed Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Glass will talk things over in New York City this week-end. Whether Glass takes over the Treasury post is expected to determine the choices for one or two other Cabinet portfolios.

However, most of the Cabinet for the "new deal" is regarded as determined, with James A. Farley, of New York, for Postmaster General; Senator Walsh, of Montana, for Attorney General; William H. Woodin, of New York, for Secretary of Commerce, and Miss Frances Perkins, of New York, for Secretary of Labor, looked upon as certainties.

Senator Hull, of Tennessee, also is looked upon as Secretary of State or Secretary of the Treasury, should Glass feel unwilling to take over Cabinet duties.

Dumping of Sugar Charged to Cuba

Tariff Commission Hears Louisianan's Plea for Rise in Duties.

(Associated Press.)

Cad. Bourg, representing the American Sugar Cane League of Louisiana, yesterday accused Cuba of "dumping" large quantities of cane sugar on the American market, which, he said, has contributed to depressed conditions among American producers.

Testifying before the Tariff Commission in its investigation of duties on raw sugar, Bourg said that during the last year Cuba has marketed sugar in the United States at prices below those its sugar producers obtained in other countries after computing differences in rates of duty.

Bourg joined representatives of sugar beet growers from Western States in pleading for an increase in the tariff, asserting that conditions in the industry have changed greatly since the Hawley-Smoot bill of 1930, which set the duty on raw sugar at approximately 2.5 cents per pound.

Yesterday in Congress

SENATE.

D. C. Heads Promise Strict Dry Rule During Inaugural

78 Men and Women Prohibitionists Appear Before Commissioners, Who Scout Report That Huge Rum Influx Is Planned.

One of the largest delegations ever to call on the District Commissioners yesterday told of reports that bootleggers are planning to bring liquor into Washington by the carload for the presidential inauguration, but they were assured by the municipal heads that the prohibition law would be strictly enforced then, as always.

Militant drys, comprising ministers, leading laymen and reformers, made up the delegation of 78 men and women. Their purpose, they declared, was to lend moral support to the Commissioners rather than to question their enforcement activities. The Commissioners, while promising strict enforcement of the dry law, scouted reports of a huge rum inflow and took issue with statements that Washington is experiencing more violations now than at any time since enactment of the Volstead law.

The keynote was sounded by Deets Pickett, prominent dry reformer, who claimed he represented between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 persons throughout the country.

Andrew Wilson, president of the District Antisaloon League for nearly a quarter of a century, recalled his roles in the enactment of the Sheppard act and the eighteenth amendment and then read a warning from Carl Laemmle, motion picture producer, that the return of the saloon would ruin the movie industry.

Capt. Edward Page Gaston, organizer and apparently the sole executor of the New Vigilantes of America, charged that distilling was under way "in the shadow of the District Building." Declaring he had the backing of Senators Borah, Capper and Sheppard, Capt. Gaston predicted that prohibition would be enforced "by militant means if necessary." He said he had organized the Vigilantes "to fight all forms of crime and to save national prohibition."

At the close of the hearing he told newspapermen he particularly wanted to enlist the youth of the country in his cause. They could be of great service, he said, probing about for liquor stills and then smashing them. In pamphlets which he distributed he suggests that Vigilantes should not carry arms.

"Let the enemy do most of the shooting," he said, "and pay the penalty. A few killings of Vigilantes would arouse the Nation."

The hearing was conducted by Dr. Everett M. Ellison, president of the Citizens Service Association for Law Enforcement, who said he had noted increasing signs of intoxication since the talk of the return of beer and prohibition repeal started on Capitol Hill.

MERGERS AND RATE REVISIONS URGED BY RAILS COMMITTEE

chairmanship on the death of former President Coolidge by Clark Howell, and Alexander Legge.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, while explaining that he was in substantial agreement with the greater part of the report, issued a supplemental memorandum, which he explained, "states my own conclusions in my own language, placing emphasis where I think it belongs."

Smith differed with the other members of the committee somewhat in his recommendations for emergency action. All agreed that the recapture clause should be repealed, retroactively, and that reorganization should be facilitated, but Smith specifically proposed that a special debtor relief act should be passed with a special provision for railroads, its operation to be definitely declared to end on January 1, 1935.

The committee recommended prompt revision of the statutory rule of rate making, asserting that the old theory of trying to base rates on "fair return" on appraised value should be junked, and adding "We see no reason why the rate-making rule should not say in plain English that the railroads are entitled to make a reasonable profit based on costs of efficient operation and that they are not entitled to earnings merely to preserve present structures if overcapitalized."

Marketable Collateral.

The committee added to its emergency recommendations the suggestion that "adequate security" for Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans does not necessarily mean "marketable collateral," although in common with Smith, it saw no reason for broadening the legal lending powers of the corporation.

In its more general recommendations, the committee said the existing mechanism of the Interstate Commerce Commission was inadequate, and urged "reorganization without expansion or increased expense," while Smith expressed the view that the commission should be abolished, and replaced by a Federal department of transportation, under one man, or a bureau in the Department of Commerce.

Regulatory jurisdiction, said the committee, should be extended to all forms of transport, but should be used only to the extent necessary for public protection. It said a broad measure of Federal and uniform State control should be applied to motor transport. Railroads, it felt, should be permitted to enter water as well as other forms of transportation, but regulatory jurisdiction should be extended to water rates and practices.

Called Ineffective Effort.

The committee urged that the Government definitely shift its previous approach to the problem of transportation in that it refrain from fostering competing transportation with or among the railroads as a defense against monopoly. This was condemned as an ineffective effort to do indirectly and ineffectively what the Government has shown its ability to do through regulation.

Inland waterways, the committee said, should be made to pay their own way or be abandoned, and the St. Lawrence waterway should be built only if it can meet this test. Smith flatly opposed building of the St. Lawrence waterway at this time. Government encouragement of aviation was recommended only during its elementary stages.

Bob White Chosen For Belasco Cast

Old Philosopher of Post Will Take Part in March 5 Show.

Bob White, the old philosopher whose writings are a daily feature of The Washington Post's radio page, has been selected in the cast of performers who will give an inaugural performance at the Belasco Theater Sunday, March 5, as part of the regular inaugural program.

Mr. White, who broadcasts twice daily over Station WMAL, has just received word of his selection. Others who will participate in this round-up of stage, screen and radio stars are Noel Coward, Beatrice Lillie, Fanny Hurst, Bert Lytell, Herbert Rawlinson, William Faversham, Irene Franklin, Cecelia Loftus and Ina Claire.

Arrangements for the show are being made by Daniel Frohman, of the Lyceum Theater in New York.

TAXI METER ORDERS UNDER DOUBLE FIRE

in the District appropriations bill a provision that no funds are to be used in 1933-34 for enforcement of the meter provision of the taxicab order. A bill providing for financial responsibility is now pending in the House.

Under the heading of "alleged chaotic conditions," Mr. Keech in his brief had this to say:

"Both before the trial court and the commission, proponents of the meter order attempted to characterize the present taxi situation as chaotic. The absurdity of such a contention is best manifested by the fact that there are millions in excess of those who formerly made use of cabs now riding, plus the further fact that an overwhelming majority of operators and owners are more than willing to continue under the present system."

The people's counsel sets forth two questions for determination by the Appellate Court as the key to the controversy: First, whether the commission has the right to require all cabs, even though not operating on a mileage basis to adopt the meter system to the exclusion of all others; and, second, if the court finds the commission has such authority, whether its exercise is reasonable under existing economic conditions.

Court of Appeals Gets Power Case

P. U. C. Rules Reselling of Electricity Not to Be Permitted.

The right of apartment house owners to submeter electric current in their buildings to their tenants is before the Court of Appeals as a result yesterday of hearings on a ruling by the Public Utilities Commission that such a resale of power was not to be permitted.

The Potomac Electric Power Co. itself started the fight against submetering when it refused to sell the real estate operators current at wholesale prices so that it could be resold to the tenant-consumers at a profit. In this refusal the Public Utilities Commission concurred.

STEP MADE IN HOUSE FOR D. C. TAX SLASH

on intangibles from $5 to $6 per $1,000.

Power to Fix Rates.

It was the committee's attempt to boost the intangibles tax, when the growing surplus gives evidence of ample existing taxes to care for current needs, that caused Judge Smith to move for the removal of the barrier to tax rate reduction. Under the law, the Commissioners have the power to fix taxes in the District, but the District bill limitation forbids them to decrease the real estate and tangible personal property levy below the existing rate.

Revulsion against the deep cuts in the District appropriations bill gained momentum yesterday, when Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, a member of the committee; Representative Anthony Griffin (Democrat), New York; Representative Smith and others announcedd they would offer amendments to restore many items in the measure.

Leading bankers and business men, comprising the municipal finance committee of the Washington Board of Trade, mapped plans for a fight against proposed increase in District taxes yesterday afternoon after hearing an exposition of the local financial situation from Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor. A committee was appointed to work with the joint committee on fiscal relations.

SILVER CHAMPIONED AS CURE FOR SLUMP

Rand and Dr. Arendtz Urge Remonetization Before Senate Group.

(Associated Press.)

A silver cure for economic and currency ills was championed strongly before the Senate Finance Committee yesterday, together with a suggestion for expanded credit facilities to help stricken industry.

James H. Rand, Jr., of New York, president of the Remington-Rand Corporation, and Dr. Herman F. Arendtz, of Boston, former Harvard economist and monetary expert, each advocated remonetization of silver on a gold base.

Paul Block, the New York publisher, urged the committee to cut Federal costs, balance the budget, repeal the eighteenth amendment and help the farmer and the unemployed, while George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., member of the War Industries Board, presented a number of suggestions for ways to aid agriculture.

Proposes Corporation.

Rand, appearing in an executive session of the committee's hearings on ways and means of restoring prosperity, proposed setting up a central industrial corporation to handle paper that could be rediscounted by the Federal Reserve Banks.

The corporation, he said, should have as members 1,000 or more of the leading manufacturers and merchants and provide money for merchants to replenish their inventories by as much as 25 per cent.

This, he said, should be followed up within 90 days by a pledge from business to put at least 3,000,000 men back to work.

1925 Level Possible.

"I think it will be possible to reach the 1925 level by concerted action and confidence," Rand said. "Farm prices will go up faster than anything else on the upturn."

Rand proposed repeal of the bank check tax, which he saw as keeping small accounts away from the banks and keeping the money involved out of commercial use.

Arendtz, who said "More hard money and less credit" is needed for financial reform, opposed proposals from some sources for an international managed-credit currency on a gold base, in which he saw "the most dangerous proposition we have been faced with."

"Ultimately More Disastrous."

He did not refer to the plan proposed Monday night by President Hoover in New York for an international currency stabilization fund, but predicted:

"An international managed credit currency is a dream that is going to be raised at the forthcoming economic conference by some big names and a big effort will be made to put it into effect."

He said war would "break to pieces" such a currency system, that it would not be practical, and added:

"We are threatened with something ultimately more disastrous from anything in the past. * * * We have got to get back to a less managed credit."

Block urged the committee to cut Federal expenditures, particularly benefits to veterans, repeal the eighteenth amendment, balance the budget, remain on the gold standard, and settle the war debts question.

Coalition Cabinet.

The publisher suggested a coalition cabinet would be a good thing, favored increased public works and reductions in the number of working days and hours to provide more employment.

Peek told the committee "this unparalleled depression is due in large part to mistaken national policy throughout the last twelve years," adding "unfortunately for the Nation we followed the insular English policy of three-fourths of a century ago and attempted to become a financial and commercial Nation."

Peek favored restricting production to domestic needs, such as is proposed in the allotment plan, only as an emergency step, but conceded that an emergency now existed.

New Coinage Program With Silver Base Urged

(Associated Press.)

A revival of the 16-to-1 silver issue of years ago was halted abruptly yesterday by the House Coinage Committee which decided that a subcommittee should draft a new plan for the greater use of silver in the base on which the Nation's money is founded.

This subcommittee is to submit the plan it agrees upon to the full committee today, and some members still hope a House vote can be had before March 4.

Mrs. Louise Achilles Asks Divorce in Reno

Reno, Nev., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Louise Lord Coleman Achilles, San Francisco society matron, filed suit here today to divorce Theodore Carter Achilles, of Washington, on grounds of cruelty. Their marriage at Los Gatos, Calif., June 30, 1927, was a social event.

Mrs. Achilles, in her complaint, asked for approval of a property settlement agreement dated December 30, 1932. She is the daughter of Mrs. Charles R. Cleveland, of Los Gatos. Mr. Achilles is connected with the diplomatic service and for a time was stationed in Tokyo.

LEAGUE SPEEDS UP ANSWER TO JAPAN

Assembly Approves Draft to Refuse Recognition of Manchukuo.

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The machinery of the League of Nations rolled steadily on toward condemnation of Japan's Manchurian program today when the assembly's executive body approved unanimously and without reservation a draft report which declared against recognition of the State of Manchukuo.

The committee of nineteen set next Tuesday for formal presentation of the report to the assembly. At the same time the failure of attempts at conciliation between Japan and China will be announced.

Japanese official quarters revealed that Yosuke Matsuoka, head of the Tokyo delegation, had telegraphed his government for final instructions regarding withdrawal from the league, and it was believed certain that the reply would be to withdraw. Any such action would be announced publicly, a Japanese spokesman said, at the plenary session of the assembly after the adoption of the report.

Fumasoni-Biondi To Sail for Rome

Apostolic Delegate on Slate for Cardinal; Vatican to Name Successor.

Named as a prospective recipient of the red hat of a cardinal Mgr. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, will leave for Rome shortly. His successor in this country has not been designated yet by the Holy See.

Mgr. Fumasoni-Biondi has served here since 1922. During the religious controversy in Mexico, he was in charge of negotiations which led to the modus vivendi between that nation and the Holy See. The retiring delegate also supervised the world Eucharistic Congress in Chicago in 1926. He has made a personal visitation to every one of the 108 dioceses in the Nation.

According to reports from Vatican City, five other prelates will be elevated to the rank of cardinal. They are Archbishop Jean Marie Rodriguez Villenueve, of Quebec; Archbishop Innitzer, of Vienna; Archbishop Pasati, of Turin; Archbishop Della Costa, of Florence, and Archbishop Dolci, papal nuncio to Roumania.

LUDINGTON-EASTERN MERGER DUE TODAY

No Major Changes Are to Be Made in New York-Miami Service.

The consolidation of the Ludington Airlines and Eastern Air Transport two of the country's most important aviation carriers, both serving Washington, will be announced in New York today.

A Ludington division of Eastern Air Transport will be created, at least temporarily until the gradual absorption of the Ludington interests can be effected by the large air mail carrying organization.

When the announcement is made it will confirm an exclusive prediction published in The Post last March.

The merger marks the passing from aviation of the greatest of the country's independent carriers operating without financial grant from the Government for the transportation of air mail. The Ludington Line, although it has set a number of records for the transportation of passengers by air, has been a losing proposition since it opened operations in September, 1930. Its owners, the Ludington brothers, of Philadelphia, now, having despaired of getting an air-mail contract, have concluded that the only alternative is to consolidate with Eastern Air Transport, who hold one of the valued Government mail agreements.

It has been learned on good authority that details of the merger call for the cancellation of Ludington schedules on the Norfolk division of the line. High-speed single-motored equipment now employed by Ludington between here and New York on a 90-minute schedule will be removed. Service on the Nashville division of the Ludington Line probably will be increased to one round trip a day instead of three round trips a week as are flown at the present time.

There will be a general coordination of rates and schedules with frequent service offered between here and New York. There will be no major changes in the through New York-to-Miami passenger service or the night air mail service now maintained by Eastern Air Transport.

Ludington trimotored equipment, which has carried 132,600 passengers and flown 3,460,000 miles, will be worked into the operations, especially between here and Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. Eastern Air Transport has already placed orders for a number of new design large twin-engined Condor transports of the type now flown along the Eastern Seaboard. These new ships will gradually replace the older equipment of both lines as it becomes obsolete.

It is a foregone conclusion that many of the flying and ground staffs of two companies will have to be dropped and it is believed that this cut will hit Ludington the hardest.

It has not been learned who will head the new organization although it has been generally inferred that Capt. Thomas Doe, president of Eastern Air, will remain in his post. It is not deemed unlikely, however, that Ludington's outstanding and younger president, James M. Eaton, who has announced his intention of retiring, will head the new set-up.

necessary to clog the legislative machinery to get a vote, was beaten, 39 to 28.

Subsequently Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, launched a cloture petition and got the requisite sixteen signatures. The vote on the cloture petition would have come up at 1 p. m. tomorrow. The agreement to vote today obviates the cloture vote.

"There are only fourteen and a half legislative days left to the life of this Congress," Senator Tydings continued. "There are seven appropriation bills, and there are various relief measures still to be acted on. The senator from Texas has been speaking several hours and the senator from Iowa (Brookhart) is ready to talk for five more hours and there are others ready to talk. It is utterly asinine to pursue the course we are pursuing."

Earlier in the day, before Senator Sheppard took the floor in his filibuster effort, Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, had urged that the question of repeal of prohibition was of small importance compared with other pending measures. The Idahoan employed the hackneyed phrase of the prohibitionists that food was more important than drink and thundered that the country was on the verge of a revolution and tried to picture that those who would have prohibition repeal considered comparable to Nero fiddling while Rome burned.

GLEN ECHO FIRE TAX BILL IS INTRODUCED

Maryland Senate Votes to Allow Ritchie to Cut Militia Pay.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14.—A special tax for the Glen Echo fire department was proposed in a bill introduced in the House here today, as the Senate passed the first economy measure of the session, a bill allowing the governor to reduce the pay of officers in the militia.

The Glen Echo bill, introduced by Delegate O. W. Roby, provides a tax of not more than 10 cents per $100 in a part of the Seventh District of Montgomery County. According to Mr. Roby, the tax has already been approved by the Civic League of Brookmont and the town government of Glen Echo. Proceeds of the levy will go entirely to the support of the fire department.

The militia pay cut bill was one of the first economy measures to be introduced in the Senate. Its course through legislative channels was unmarked by opposition. The bill does not make a pay cut mandatory, but allows the governor to reduce the wage when he thinks it advisable.

Other bills received by the Senate today will bar the Japanese oyster from Maryland waters, make several changes in the oyster law and provide that school teachers shall not have to go to summer school during 1933 and 1934. The oyster bills, introduced by Senator Joseph Allan Coad, of St. Marys County, make minor changes in the law governing their taking and give the Conservation Commissioner power to seize and destroy all oysters, but those native to the Chesapeake Bay.

In the House another of the County Commissioners Association bills was introduced. It provides that all fines for traffic violations shall go to the counties instead of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Another bill, providing that members of patriotic associations which sponsor legislation shall take an eighth-grade examination in history was also offered. It is understood to be aimed at organizations which are backing a bill to require school teachers to take the oath of allegiance to the flag. The examination bill provides that any member not making a grade of 60 per cent in the history test shall be ousted from their organization.

County Tax Rate Below $1 Seen Possible in Maryland

Senator Sasscer Defends Administration's Program in First General Floor Debate on Budget Problems; Warns Against "Hysterical" Slashes.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14.—The county tax rate can be cut to less than $1 at this session of the Assembly, Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, chairman of the finance committee and majority floor leader, said here today as he defended the administration's financial program on the floor of the Senate.

Senator Sasscer also warned against "hysterical" budget cuts and cuts in appropriations for fundamentals. His speech was a part of the first general debate on budget problems, which definitely outlined the varying trends of thought on new taxes and governmental economies. The unusual debate was characterized by one senator as being "out of order, but we have to get this out of our systems."

Today's discussion was precipitated by Senator Joseph Allan Coad (Democrat), St. Marys, who rose to answer Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's statement that the budget probably could not be cut enough to make new taxes unnecessary. "We can cut one and a half millions a year from that budget without impairing the efficiency of any State department. Any new tax is absolutely and unqualifiedly unnecessary at this time," Senator Coad said.

"Where are the other $3,000,000 coming from to help the counties and Baltimore?" was the question asked of Senator Coad by Senator W. Earl Withgott (Democrat), Talbot. "I feel that the counties can not bear more than a 75 cent rate," Senator Withgott said.

"We can come out of the Senate with local tax rates in most counties less than $1," Senator Sasscer then said. He explained he wanted to remove any impression that there was any division in the finance committee on the subject of economy, but added, "we can get tax reduction through abolition of jobs and salary cuts without getting hysterical and striking at fundamental institutions."

An even lower county tax rate was forecast by Senator Dudley G. Roe (Democrat), Queen Anne, who said: "The school problem solution will give a further reduction to between 75 and 80 cents." The Republicans refrained generally from the debate, except that the minority floor leader, L. Creston Beauchamp, told the Democrats, "We will give credit to you for any cuts and will help, but reserve the right to call attention to the fact if the cuts are not made."

The debate closed with a plea that the Senate Finance Committee report the budget out within the week, and a suggestion by Senator Robert G. Hilton (Democrat), Montgomery, that the committee work night and day until it was reported. Whereupon a committee meeting was called for this afternoon and another for tonight, and the Senate adjourned.

POLICE PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED BY CHIEF

Sergt. Kelley of Radio Fame Is Elevated to Acting Lieutenant.

Plans for enlargement and development of the Metropolitan Police Department were announced yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent, following publication of sixteen promotions to go into effect at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

The Women's Bureau, which has in the past been commanded by a lieutenant, will assume greater importance with the promotion of Lieut. Rhoda J. Milliken, to the status of a precinct commander, with the rank of acting captain.

The Crime Prevention Bureau, headed by a sergeant since the removal of Inspector Ogden T. Davis as commander, will be directed by Lieut. H. W. Lineberg, who will be transferred from the Traffic Bureau.

Kelley Promoted Again.

A greater cooperation of all radio units with the routine police duties is presaged with the promotion of Detective Sergt. J. L. Kelley to the rank of acting lieutenant in charge of the radio communication system. Kelley, who two years ago was a private, has made rapid progress in the department by exploiting his radio hobby.

The hack inspector's office, which was manned by a full lieutenant and two privates several years ago, now has a force of 15. Sergt. Thomas Mason, jr., in command of the office, will become acting lieutenant.

Maj. Brown explained the increase of the men assigned to hacking duty by the increase in cabs from a little over 2,000 to about 5,000. Traffic regulations also have become more complicated.

Others Moved Up.

Other promotions follow:

Lieut. Milton D. Smith, captain and second in command of the Traffic Bureau; Sergt. Albert T. Bullock, to lieutenant, transferred from Second Precinct to Traffic Bureau; Sergt. John R. Jeffries, to lieutenant, transferred from First to Eleventh Precinct; Detective Sergt. Clarence Bailey, to lieutenant and Traffic Bureau; Sergt. Lewis D. Redman, to lieutenant, transferred from Eighth to Sixth Precinct.

Private John E. Scott, to sergeant, from Traffic Bureau to Second Precinct; Private Lafone Starkweather, to sergeant, transferred from Third to Seventh Precinct; Private Mary C. Gainey, to sergeant; Precinct Detective Clyde M. Strange, to Detective Headquarters; Private William J. Liverman, to rank of precinct detective; Private C. M. Luis, to sergeant, transferred from Sixth to Second Precinct, and Private David McCutcheon, to sergeant, transferred from Traffic Bureau to First Precinct.

Many Transferred.

Transfers announced to take effect tomorrow: Lieut. Charles J. P. Weber, from Detective Bureau to Second Precinct; Lieut. Frank E. Varney from Second to Fifth Precinct; Sergt. B. C. Carroll, from Second to Eighth Precinct; Sergt. A. S. Behrer, from Tenth to Sixth Precinct; Sergt. H. C. Blackman, from Sixth to Tenth Precinct; Sergt. W. D. Haislip, from Seventh to Fifth Precinct; Private L. C. Wise, from Ninth to Tenth Precinct; Private H. C. Watson, from Seventh to Eighth Precinct; Private L. D. Johnson, from Eighth Precinct to Traffic Bureau; Private A. S. # Admr. Hoogewerff Dies in Honolulu

Former Director of Naval Observatory Was Native of Maryland.

It was learned yesterday that Rear Admiral John A. Hoogewerff, U. S. N., retired, former superintendent of the Naval Observatory, died Monday at Honolulu of heart disease. He was visiting his son, Lieut, Comdr. Hiester Hoogewerff, of the U. S. S. Ogiala.

The admiral, who was 72 years old, was born in Howard County, Md. He entered the Naval Academy in 1877. He served in Cuba during the Spanish War and in the Philippines during the insurrection. His duty at the Naval Observatory began in 1913, was interrupted by the World War, in which he won the Navy Cross, and ended when he was transferred to the Puget Sound Navy Yard as commandant in 1921. He was retired in 1924 and made his home at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.

Funeral services will be held at the funeral home of Francis Gasch's Sons., Hyattsville, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon with interment at Evergreen Cemetery, Bladensburg.

Mrs. Davis was born in Westmoreland County, Va. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Richter, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Mamie Mayhew, and a son, James Rowe, of Chester, Pa.

DEPOSITORS RELIEF PROVIDED IN DETROIT

$1,500,000,000 reposing in Michigan financial institutions, was on the way.

At the same time, the governor issued a statement in which he corrected an impression given in an earlier statement that a controversy between Henry Ford and competing automobile companies figured in the failure of efforts to avert the issuance of his proclamation.

He said he had been informed that "I misunderstood the facts in the Union Guardian Trust situation," the condition of which precipitated the financial difficulties. In an earlier statement, the governor had said he was informed that Mr. Ford had refused to join other large depositors, including Chrysler and General Motors Corporations in an agreement to subordinate their claims to those of smaller depositors and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Chrysler and General Motors are not depositors," the governor's statement read. "Mr. Ford had no agreement with the trust company or with Chrysler or General Motors." He said that when it was suggested the Ford Co. put up "a substantial part" of necessary funds, the company decided it could make no further investment, having already put approximately $20,000,000 into the trust company.

MRS. HENRY WAHL DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Fatal Illness Followed Auto Accident; Funeral Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Mrs. Catherine Wahl, 63, wife of Henry Wahl, owner of Wahl's Department Store and a director of the American Security & Trust Co., died Monday in Savannah, Ga., from pneumonia resulting from an automobile accident in which three of her ribs were broken.

The accident occurred Saturday when Mrs. Wahl, her husband and his sister, Mrs. Mary Borgman, were returning from a two-week vacation in Florida. Their car was sideswiped by another automobile which did not stop. The crash happened a few miles from Savannah. Mr. Wahl escaped injury. Mrs. Borgman is now in a Savannah hospital with severe injuries.

The Wahls make their home at 1508 Galatin street. Mrs. Wahl is survived by her husband, a son, Louis J. Wahl, and two grandchildren, Catherine and Betty Lou.

Requiem mass for Mrs. Wahl will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow morning at Holy Name Church. Burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery will follow.

DR. HILL EULOGIZES LINCOLN PRINCIPLES

Pastors and Professors Who Preach New Doctrines Called U. S. Foes.

Neglect of the principles for which Lincoln lived will sound the death knell of our free institutions, members of the National Masonic Craftmen's Club were told last night by Dr. John Wesley Hill, chancellor of Lincoln Memorial University, of Cumberland Gap, Tenn., at a celebration in honor of the memory of the great emancipator.

"Efforts to destroy and divert these principles of Lincoln are being made by the representatives of agitation and revolution," Dr. Hill declared. "There are over 300 revolutionary publications in this country engaged in propaganda utterly incongruous with the ideals for which Lincoln stood."

Dr. Hill charged that preachers and college professors are teaching contempt for the established institutions of America. Many of these so-called "advanced thinkers are not only cunning and adroit, but able and magnetic, possessed of a power to inflame and mislead the immature," he asserted.

The university chancellor appealed for a Lincoln renaissance, pointing out that the present time is ripe for such a movement. "Such a revival," he said, "should be creative, striking to the roots of things."

"Lincoln," Dr. Hill reminded his audience, "knew the difference between progress and motion. He was neither a reactionary nor a revolutionary. Progressiveness with him was only another word for growth. It must be free from violence and destruction; it must be expressed in evolution, not revolution. Lincoln would not attempt to rebuild the world overnight.

"We have fallen upon strange and ominous times," Dr. Hill continued; "a period of social, economic, political and religious adventure, in which all sorts of fustian doctrines are proposed to substitute the principles incarnate in the soul of Lincoln. What would he say of this drift from our historic moorings? What would he say of the program of Government ownership, with its proposed ownership of lands, mines, factories and the homes itself?

"He would declare, as he did while alive: 'The legitimate object of government is to do for a community of people whatever they need to have done but can not do at all, or can not do so well in their separate and individual capacities?'"

An address extolling the principles of Lincoln was also made by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines. The meeting was held at Mount Pleasant Lodge Hall.

1933 Refrigerators Shown to Dealers

Complete New Norge Line Is Displayed Before 500 at Meeting.

A complete line of the new 1933 Norge refrigerators was presented for inspection before more than 500 dealers of the Washington district of the Columbia Wholesalers, last night, at a banquet and entertainment in the Mayflower Hotel.

Reviewing accomplishments of the Columbia Wholesalers, John Knapp, general sales manager for the Borg-Warner Corporation, of Muskegon, Mich., explained features of the new models.

His novel introduction of the new refrigerators, with the aid of two attractive dancing girls, brought rounds of applause at the close of his talk.

A telegram regretting his inability to attend was read from Howard Blood, president of the Borg-Warner Corporation. Leroy L. Andrews, president of the Columbia Wholesalers, presided. A talk also was made by L. R. McDowell, Washington manager of the wholesalers.

REPORT SUBMITTED BY NURSING SOCIETY

24,167 Patients Are Treated in Year, With 182,028 Visits Made.

A total of 24,167 patients was given care and 182,028 visits were made by the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society during 1932, it was announced yesterday at the regular meeting of the board of managers of the society. Of these visits, 117,969 were given free.

Mrs. Whitman Cross, president of the board, announced that due to the financial situation the staff would not be increased. However, no reduction is contemplated, she said.

Mrs. John W. Davidge, chairman of the nursing committee, submitted a recommendation to cooperate with the out patient delivery service of the Georgetown Medical School, referring such patients as could not be admitted to hospitals or could not afford private physicians.

Active work in various centers was reported by Mrs. G. Howland Chase, chairman of the supply committee.

A new memorial was endowed to the society by a gift from Miss Virginia Hunt, a member of the board, who donated $100 to establish a memorial day on January 9, the anniversary of the death of her aunt, Miss Cornelia Cress.

Others present at the meeting were: Mrs. Wilder D. Baker, Mrs. Leonard Block, Miss Elizabeth Bryan, Mrs. Dwight Clark, Mrs. Hutchinson I. Cone, Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, Mrs. Charles C. Glover, Miss Janet B. Houtz, Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mrs. Cresson Newbold, Mr. George H. # PLAY TOURNAMENT OPENS AT EASTERN

"Retribution," by Capital Man, High Light; Concerns Air Line Tragedy.

An interesting and original drama written by Aaron Goldman, of this city, and offered by the Jewish Community Center Dramatic Society, was the highlight of the opening of the 1933 District one-act play tournament last night at Eastern High School.

Coming from an organization that can always be relied upon for a sterling presentation, this play, entitled "Retribution," is laid in the field office of an air transport line and portrays with incisive power the price an avaricious man paid for his indifference to human values.

The owner of the line, played with splendid sincerity by Irvin Wolloch, orders his supervisor, Philip Notes, to run all planes on schedule regardless of weather conditions so a Government contract for carrying air mail may be obtained.

The owner pays for his greed by losing his son and the star pilot of the line in a crash during a storm. Frances Levin contributes a fine bit in the part of the stenographer, and the brief appearance of Nathan Goldman as the pilot is responsible for the deep impression made by the climax of the play. Mr. Notes carries the drama through from start to finish by his constant presence on the stage.

The Dowling Guild presented "A Wedding," a rather long and drawn out comedy, all about a missing collar button. A creditable interpretation of the first act of Channing Pollock's play, "The Fool," was given by the Women's City Club. The Wigs and Queues Dramatic Club's entry, "Teeth of the Gift Horse," was disappointing.

The second round in the tournament will be given tomorrow night at Eastern High under auspices of the Community Center department and the Drama Guild of Washington.

4 District Firemen Put on Retired List

Frank Hall, Messenger of Chief Watson, Quits After 29 Years.

Four firemen were ordered retired yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Fire Chief George S. Watson. One was the chief's messenger, Frank Hall, a private, who for 24 years has stood at the door of the fire chief's office to greet all visitors. During this time he has served under four department heads.

Private Hall, who has attended all of the major fires in the last quarter of a century, is considered an authority on the history of the Fire Department. He was retired upon reaching the age of 64, serving 29 years in the department.

Capt. G. S. Bishop, of No. 4 Engine Company, was retired for physical disability as were Sergt. C. C. Weltzel, of No. 19 Engine Company, and Private J. A. Burroughs, of the fire marshal's office.

Plans were perfected for a drive for new members beginning March 1. The campaign committee includes Charles T. Thorpe, chairman; J. L. Richart, A. W. Davis, Mrs. Pauline Smith, Mrs. Roy Reeve, Mrs. Roy Miller and the Rev. J. W. Townsend.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 14.

WHEN TO REPORT INCOME FROM SALARIES, WAGES, &C.

Of the millions of income tax returns that are filed annually the vast majority are from salaried persons and wage earners whose income is derived from personal services.

In general, compensation for personal services should be reported for taxation purposes in the year it is received or unqualifiedly made subject to demand. Compensation credited to the account of or set apart for a taxpayer, without any substantial limitation or restriction, and which may be drawn upon by him at any time, is subject to tax for the year during which so credited or set apart, although not then actually reduced to possession. If the services were rendered during the year 1931, or even prior thereto, but the compensation was not received, or made unqualifiedly subject to demand, by the taxpayer until the year 1932, the entire amount is taxable in the year received, or made unqualifiedly subject to demand, when the taxpayer is reporting on the cash receipts and disbursements basis, which is the basis used by most persons in reporting net income.

All of the various types of compensation, unless specifically exempt by statute, should be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income, such as salaries, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses, tips, honorariums, prizes, awards, pensions in recognition of past services, &c. Other items subject to tax are fees received by ministers of the gospel for funerals, baptisms, masses and like services; executors' fees, directors' fees, Federal jury fees, and prizes received in contests of various kinds.

The salaries of Federal officers and employes are subject to tax, including the salary of the President of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after the date of the enactment of the revenue act of 1932, which was June 6, 1932. The salaries of members of the House of Representatives and the members of the United States Senate are also subject to income tax.

Theft of Newspapers Gets 60 days.

For the theft of fifteen newspapers from an honor rack at Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Thomas G. Brooks, colored, yesterday was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

Photo groups the various captains of the Federal Bridge League, first organization of its kind in history, created last fall by the National Federation of Federal Employes. Left to right, they are (front), Christian Miller, Foreign Commerce Aces; Harry Wensel, Standards Phychems; Rush Buckley, General Accounting Office; Rudolph Aukschun, Hydrographers; Fannie Harper, Bureau of Engraving and Printing; Frank Garner, State-Navy; C. F. Gable, Interior; George C. Hill, Standards Engineers. Standing, T. E. Petty, Interstate No. 1; Hans Lineweaver, Fixed Nitrogen; A. E. Coldwell, Geodesy; Bernard Pitt, Interstate Stats; T. E. Forbes, Aftons; Isaac York, Treasury; William Lerch, Standards KYZ's. And they do say there is some mean shuffling in that league.

It was a 9 o'clock town and it was 9 o'clock.

It had been a great day. The peepul and their representative in Congress had had a heart-to-heart talk. Representative I. M. Sin Seer had told the voters he had come back to them clean from Washington after saving the peepul more money.

Here are some of the things he told them:

"My friends, you told me your tax burden was too heavy—that it had to be cut. I've done my bit. I went to Washington and agitated for that other 12-3 per cent in Government workers' pay envelopes.

"Now we'll have better times. We're bound to, for Government employes were getting all the money Uncle Sam had, your money which you worked early and late to make. Yes, sir; I've scotched that drain on our national resources."

And they cheered Representative Seer to the echo. The Honorable Mr. Seer "pumped" everybody in the crowd and they all drank good cider together.

HERE are some things Representative Seer forgot to tell the peepul:

Twenty per cent of all Federal Civil Service employes receive less than $1,000 per year.

Fifty-five per cent of all Federal Civil Service employes receive less than $1,500 per year.

Of the $60,000,000,000 estimated income for the country in 1931, only $4,000,000,000 was used for Federal expenditures.

And of that $4,000,000,000 approximately $1,022,000,000 went to owners of Government bonds, $878,000,000 for the Army and Navy and only $1,048,000,000 went to the 620,000 Federal employes.

With few exceptions Federal employes receive no pay for overtime, holiday or Sunday work outside their regular hours.

Federal employes under Civil Service are forbidden to be active in politics, national or otherwise.

And finally, but not least, Mr. Seer failed to tell the peepul that the minute Congress shows little enough faith in the future to ship some more off the wages of Federal workers, just as soon will private industry say, "Well, Congress did it, so it's time for another round again."

Add to the 70,000 employes in Washington's Government work the average three-and-one-half-to-the-family and you have nearly 250,000 directly affected by the cut here alone.

Add the same ratio to the 620,000 Federal employes attending to Uncle Sam's affairs over the entire country and you have close to 2,000,000 affected.

But after all, it was a great day in the old hometown, what with "pumping" and cider and Representative Seer in their midst.

By the way, didn't Representative Seer vote against cutting his own salary again. What! Live on less than $9,000 and die on free funerals! Impossible!

AS we were saying, "It was 9 o'clock."

* * * *

We wish the Federal Diary Spelling Bee and the fourth annual Biological Survey party were not slated for the same evening, February 28. We'd like to go to both. But there'll be a big time at each place.

Reception, cards, indoor games and dancing will be offered by the bureau in the ball room at Kennedy-Warren. And who but this committee could assure greater success for the party:

Albert M. Day, Margaret Roberts, Elsie Galloway, Alice Hall, R. M. Rutherford, P. C. Lincoln and A. C. Martin.

So You're Looking For a Spelling Champion in The Federal Diary WASHINGTON POST first annual spelling bee competition, February 28.

Suppose you enroll me for the contest, and may the best man (or woman) win.

(SIGNED.) .....

Bureau or department .....

What's this! Our old friend Philip Ebert, over at General Accounting Office, has just entered the Diary Spelling Bee. Philip will make a good showing the evening of February 28 at the National Press Club, we'll wager.

That reminds us of the spelling contest to be held tonight, which is Washington Post night, at the Mount Pleasant Library, Sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest, at 7:30 o'clock, when many of those who will participate in the Diary Spelling Bee will attend. It should be good practice for the big event the evening of February 28.

The method of carrying on the Diary contest will be used tonight. Visitors and newcomers will be welcome and only newcomers will be eligible to win the prizes. We hear the Capital City Spelling Club will be there.

We almost forgot to say that this word was pronounced (but we don't know how) in the Washington-Baltimore spelling contest: "Antidisestablishmentarianism." Dulin, Commerce, spelled it correctly, after two others had failed.

Of course, we can't tell. They might call out that very same word in the Federal Diary Spelling Bee. We hope we're not on the receiving end of that word. It takes a wheelbarrow to carry all the syllables and there are almost as many pieces as in a jigsaw puzzle.

* * * *

Modifying the words of an old song:

"When you know you're not forgotten
By the friends you can't forget."

We like to hear from old friends
Whose friendship means the most.
We like to know we're still in mind;
Of such friends we make our boast.

FAIRFAX EDUCATION BUDGET $198,954.20

Five-Day Sick Leave Voted Out and Holiday Pay Is in Danger.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. Box 248, Fairfax, Va. Phone Fairfax 186.

It will cost $198,954.20 to operate Fairfax schools in 1933-34, according to the tentative budget of the county school board. This is a reduction of $204,585.95, exclusive of district funds raised by the levies in the various magisterial districts for retirement and interest on bonds and State literary loans.

The outlay for next year, on which taxes will be paid this fall, has been tentatively divided as follows: $5,305 for administration, including the school board and divisional superintendent salaries, office expenses and supplies; $120,097 for white teachers and $11,920 for colored. This is an increase of $7,000 over last year. Other instruction costs such as free textbooks, maps and laboratory supplies are listed at $925, and $500 was provided for elementary school dental inspection.

Auxiliary agencies, including private and county transportation of children, libraries, tuition paid to other divisions and towns, get $30,115; $12,900 is allowed for operation of schools including fuel, water, light, power and janitors' wages and supplies; fixed charges, including rent, insurance and employes compensation total $4,525; maintenance and repairs to buildings, grounds and replacement of furniture requires $7,000; for purchasing of equipment and alteration of old buildings, $4,000 was provided, and $1,687.20 for debt service.

There will be a decrease in State aid to pay county teachers. Last year $57,469.86 was received, as against an estimate of $50,706.70 next year. The balance required will be raised by local levies on personal property and real estate.

The only other increase expected will be in Mount Vernon district, where it will be necessary to place an additional levy for the construction of the proposed six-room and auditorium addition to Groveton School.

The proposed budget now goes to the County Board of Supervisors for approval. A joint meeting of the two boards will be held next Thursday. Following this meeting the tentative budget will be advertised for a public hearing, at which time county citizens will be given an opportunity to express themselves.

The school board yesterday, as a matter of economy, voted to eliminate the five-day sick leave for teachers during the next session and it is expected when the school calender for the next session is drafted no pay will be allowed for holiday. It also was voted to establish a commercial course at the new high school center at Lee Jackson.

The matter was presented to the Ministerial Association by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church, and the motion for its adoption seconded by the Rev. E. V. Regester, D. D., pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Church South.

Constable Rebuked In Prince Georges

Change in Zoning of Lots in Highland Park Is Approved.

Prince Georges County Constable Ralph Knight was reprimanded yesterday after a hearing before the county commissioners, on complaints filed by two persons. One of the charges against Knight was made by Mrs. Charles Reed, of Riverdale, Md., who said that Knight had searched her house without a search warrant, although he held a warrant for the arrest of her brother.

The other complaint was made by a Washingtonian, who claimed that Knight arrested him for failing to keep to the right, although there was no basis for the charge.

The commissioners approved a change in zoning for five lots in Highland Park. The change, which has also been approved by the Park and Planning Commission, is from residential to commercial. The commissioners made plans to confer with the county delegation in the Legislature Thursday in Annapolis. The county economy program will be taken up at that time.

Garrett Park Council Seeks Through Streets

The town council of Garrett Park has promulgated a new ordinance providing for the establishment of "through" streets in the town and that vehicles must come to a stop before crossing streets so designated.

The only street so named is Strathmore street, the State road through the town. Violators are punishable by a fine not to exceed $5.

Today Is Deadline For Dog Licenses

Animals Without Tags in Takoma Park Facing Prospect of Pound.

Takoma Park dogs must pay their share of the town's upkeep, the town fathers have decreed, and today is the last day they may roam on their 1932 licenses. All dogs found loose without 1933 tags after today will be impounded by the police until the tags are purchased by the owners. An additional fee of $2 will be charged for each dog impounded.

Dog tags may be obtained from the town clerk, J. Wilson Dodd, who has an office in the firehouse. Tags cost $2 for females and $1 for males. Town residents who purchase town licenses will not be required to purchase county licenses.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man, found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton, and is recognized as the heir to a fortune of $4,000,000. He falls in love with Madeline Moore. Because he learns that Sefton also loves her and because he is fed up with civilization, Kaspa goes back to the jungle. Lucian Marley, Kaspa's relative, who would inherit part of the fortune if Kaspa were dead, accompanied by his sister, Sheila, and her husband, Harland Reeves, go after him to learn of his fate. With them is Madeline, who wants to find her lover, and Sefton, Lucian, who is heavily in debt, and Reeves, who has personal scores to settle with Kaspa, have every reason to wish him dead, and are planning to do away with him if they find him alive. They have already communicated with Loudon Grant, an unscrupulous commissioner, regarding a plan to effect this. Sefton finds Jan Cloete, the Dutch hunter who originally captured Kaspa, and with his two lorries and natives they pulled out on the road to Nyoka.

CHAPTER XXV.

SEFTON was an old campaigner. He had bought a complete outfit, so that their camp on the river under the big mohogo trees was comfortable. The girls were glad to rest for a day or two after the long motor journey, while their men folk made final arrangements with Loudon Grant for the safari. Grant was much as Harland Reeves had expected him to be from Sefton's description and the commissioner's letter. They understood each other at once. There was a sundowner party the second day of their stay at Nyoka, and Reeves and Lucian were the only visitors present.

Sefton did not like Grant, and would not accept his hospitality, but the other two were not so particular. Grant, who prided himself upon his judgment of men, soon came to the conclusion that each of his guests was anxious for a private conversation with him. He remembered the letter he had written under the stimulus of alcohol, and in a moment of recklessness born of disgust at his surroundings. Was it possible that his hints had fallen upon fertile ground? Since the unfortunate embroilment with another official at the coast, which had resulted in his being put back to his station in the primitive wilderness, Grant had become embittered. He felt he would do anything to get out of it, and, if he were not mistaken, the means was at hand.

When Lucian and Reeves at last rose to go, he called the stockbroker into his office for a private consultation, ostensibly to do with the investment of his savings.

When, an hour later, Reeves rejoined his companions, he wore the satisfied air a man who has succeeded in ordering affairs to his liking. Lucian stole away to the commissioner's bungalow that night after dinner, but his interview brought him no comfort, to judge by his harassed, furtive expression as he walked back to his tent in the moonlight.

Jan Cloete was the next of Grant's visitors, and the two of them sat up till dawn over a bottle of whisky. The hunter was under an obligation to the commissioner. There was a matter of the death of an Arab headman which Grant had hushed up, but which could even now be re-urrected with unpleasant results for the Dutchman. Deportation was the lightest sentence he could expect if it could be proved that Ali bin Salim had met his end at the hands of his employer in a moment of ungovernable rage. Grant had long used this lever to compel the hunter's compliance to his wishes. He put what he could in Cloete's way, but he demanded a share of the profits of every transaction. The profits of the present undertaking, if brought to a successful conclusion, would be sufficient to make them both affluent, but the job was not to Cloete's liking.

"I do not want to do it, Mr. Grant," he said, shaking his big beard. "I would have done it when I first taught him, for then he was no better than an animal, but I saw him in Chola when he got back from Canada, and he is now a man. It is too much to go hunting a man like he was an elephant."

Grant clucked impatiently. "Do not think about it that way. There must be no suspicion of premeditation; you must make it look like an accident." He considered for a moment. "Of course, the big fellow may do it himself, in which event there will be nothing for you, Cloete, and your hands will be clean, but supposing he were to get in a mix-up and you were to come to his assistance and flop out our wild and woolly friend, we should clean up on both of them. Let Reeves tackle it his own way, but stand by for accidents, and remember that young Marley will produce the coin the moment he comes into his inheritance."

Cloete spat. "It is not so bad the way the big one wants it," he growled. "He wants to fight fair, but the young man is frightened to do his own dirty work, and he wants me to do it for him. Man, that makes me sick."

"You're going to do it, too," said Grant in a bullying tone. "Don't make any mistake, Cloete; I'm going to have that money. You know what I'll do if you let me down. I can easily dig up that evidence and say it has only just come into my possession."

The Dutchman was cowed. "All right, Mr. Grant," he muttered, "I'll do it." Another objection occurred to him. "If they are in Portuguese territory, what then? I can not go shooting there."

Grant sneered. "Don't play that game, Cloete. You have poached elephants across the border many a time. Besides, who is to know where the thing happens? The nearest post on that side is 200 miles away."

Cloete subsided. He saw that he must do this thing or make an enemy of Loudon Grant, a state of affairs he dreaded to contemplate. They sat over the bottle until it was empty, and then Cloete staggered off to his tent, leaving Grant not ill pleased with his night's work.

The following day the safari started—on foot, for the country was unsuited to mechanical transport. On the fourth evening they reached the Nyoka and went into camp, where Cloete had camped when he made Kaspa captive three years before. They visited the cave in the donga and found it deserted, then Cloete settled down to kill time, while his natives scoured the country for news of the lion-man. The visitors amused themselves in hunting, reading and lounging about. Madeline and Sefton explored the countryside. Madeline loved it. She spent the days with Sefton in the forest and at night lay in her camp-bed listening to the cry of wild animals about her. Once she heard the distant coughing roar of the lion which made her sit up in bed with beating heart, wondering if her lover were roaming the veldt with his savage friends.

Those were glorious days for Sefton. He delighted in the company of his beloved. In the unhurried peace of the wilderness, Martin found a new ideal—the realization of a pure passion uninfluenced by the hope of a reward. He bowed to the inevitable and was at peace.

On the seventh day, Jan Cloete cast his eyes upward to the mountain slopes beyond the forest and sent Simba to investigate them. "I do not think he will find anything," he declared, "but we will not leave any place unexplored before we move down into the thorns."

In two days Simba returned, smiling. He had found Kaspa's tracks with the lion spoor at a water hole on the further edge of the forest. They broke camp and journeyed through the tangled forest. At a spot where a rushing stream descended from the grassy slopes into the leafy forest the tents were pitched one evening just at sunset, and before the last mallet stroke echoed in the calm air the roaring of lions was all about them. No one went to bed until late that night. The air was cold and misty. They sat around a blazing fire and listened to the voices of the lions, now near, now far, as they hunted the zebra on the hills. Once, toward morning, Madeline awoke with the feeling that some presence was near her. She was convinced that huge, tawny beasts were moving stealthily about the camp. She pulled the blankets over her head and lay shivering in dread of the wild creatures.

The following morning they set out to find the lions' lair, all except Lucian, who stayed in camp, alleging indisposition. Jan Cloete led the party over the veld, the others trailing along behind. Sefton and Madeline were last, and before they had gone far he drew her aside under a shady tree and let the party proceed without them.

"I can't stand going after Kaspa like that, all armed and looking like a Cockney shooting party," he said. "Let you and me do a little exploring on our own account."

The girl agreed, and they continued up the hill, following the course of the river, striving to penetrate the morning mist which still enshrouded them. The search for Kaspa was kept up all day, but the only person to see and have speech with the lion-man was the one who did not look for him.

After the others had departed Lucian took his book and wandered into the forest. The heavy trees arched over him and the thick laurel growth hedged him about, so that he felt shut off from the world and inclosed in a green peace of shining leaves and tinkling waters. There were beautiful black and white colobus in a glade by the stream, and he watched them idly.

They were the only beasts he saw, and he was unconscious that he ran any risk of encountering rhinoceros or buffalo so close to the camp. The young man was in a state of nervous excitement. Since his conversation with Loudon Grant, in which he had said more than he intended, his mind had been in a turmoil of doubts and fears. He knew that Cloete had been informed that he was willing to pay heavily for Kaspa's death, and whenever he met the hunter's gaze he saw contempt and dislike in those cold blue eyes. While he walked in this peaceful spot, musical with the cooing of big blue pigeons, his ears were strained for the sound of a rifle shot, a sound that would announce his accession to a fortune and the brand of murderer. He sat down by the rushing stream and groaned aloud. Why had he acquiesced in this dreadful deed? He had not meant to go so far when he talked with Grant, but the commissioner had plied him with drink and led him on, until finally he had thrown discretion to the winds and actually offered half a million dollars for the proof of his cousin's death. He realized now that he was entirely in Grant's hands. The man had made him put his offer in writing, and for the rest of his life he would go in fear of exposure and the gallows. He wished he had never come to this country where men talked of murder so easily; better far if he had stayed in Toronto and let Solomon do his worst. He knew himself no match for these unscrupulous men.

Grant and Cloete would exploit him and fool him, and in the finish he would derive nothing from this expedition but terror and misery. Why had he not taken Reeves' advice and appealed to Kaspa to help him? He longed for that opportunity now, but he was assured that he would never have it. It was too late. Cloete was on the trail of the lion-man, and when he found him a single shot would settle the matter. He would never see his cousin alive again. He groaned aloud, "Oh, Kaspa, why did you ever come back to this horrible place, where there is death and cruelty in the very air one breathes?"

A low voice replied to him. "I am so accustomed to it that I can't do without it, Lucian."

Kaspa stood there behind him, leaning against a tree ten paces away. Lucian stared at the lion-man as though he were a ghost, and indeed his appearance was frightening enough to the unaccustomed gaze of the city man.

Viscountess d'Alte, wife of the Minister of Portugal, is among the patronesses for the bridge and backgammon tournament which will be held on Thursday at the Plaza in New York for the benefit of the Stuyvesant Square Hospital.

The retiring Minister of Honduras, Senor Dr. Don Celeo Davila and Senora Davila were the guests in whose honor Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas entertained at dinner at the Madrillon last evening.

The guests included the Minister of Venezuela, Senor Don Dr. Pedro Arcaya and Senora Arcaya; the Charge d'Affaires of Nicaragua, Senor Dr. Don Luis Manuel Debayle and Senora Debayle; the Secretary of the Legation of Panama and Mrs. Chevalier; the Resident Commissioner of Porto Rico, Jose L. Pesquera and Senora Pesquera; the Attache of the Cuban Embassy, Senor Don Orestes Garcia and Senora Garcia, and Col. and Mrs. Joseph S. Heller, and Dr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Lewis.

Senator and Mrs. Marcus A. Coolidge will entertain at dinner this evening.

Representative Snell Guest of Republicans.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, Republican leader of the House of Representatives, was guest of honor at a dinner given last evening at the Mayflower by the whip organization of the House.

The company present included Representative Carl G. Bachmann, of West Virginia; Representative Harry L. Englebright, of California; Representative Scott Leavitt, of Montana; Representative David Hopkins, of Missouri; Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, and Representative James Wolfenden, of Pennsylvania.

Also the following: Representative Malcolm Baldridge, of Nebraska; Representative William E. Evans, of California; Representative James G. Strong, Kansas; Representative Frederick C. Loofbourow, of Utah; Representative August H. Anderson, of Minnesota; Representative John C. Allen, of Illinois; Representative Charles E. Swanson, of Iowa; Representative Chester C. Bolton, of Ohio; Representative John C. Ketcham, of Michigan; Representative Menalcus Lankford, of Virginia; Representative Oscar B. Lovette, of Tennessee; Representative Daniel A. Reed, of New York; Representative Robert Low Bacon, of New York; Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth, of Massachusetts; Representative Donald F. Snow, of Maine; Representative J. Howard Swick, Representative J. Roland Kinzer, Representative Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania, and Representative George N. Seger, of New Jersey.

Mrs. Eaton, wife of Representative William R. Eaton, of Colorado, will entertain at a bridge this afternoon at Wardman Park Hotel.

The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr will entertain at tea on Saturday at their residence on Wyoming avenue, when their guests will include the members of the "Little Cabinet" and their wives.

The Second Secretary of the French Embassy, Mr. Raymond Bousquet, will sail on Saturday for two months' leave of absence in France.

Miss Grace Burton will entertain at luncheon on February 21 in honor of Mrs. Walter Brown, wife of the Postmaster General.

Mme. S. Watanabe, of New York City, is at the Powhatan Hotel.

Mrs. Charles A. Hawley entertained at luncheon and bridge at the Carlton yesterday, the company numbering 24.

Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Madison, of San Francisco, are guests at Wardman Park Hotel while in Washington on their tour through the Eastern States.

Mrs. Henry Albers has as her guest her sister, Mrs. Lowry P. Sater, of Columbus, Ohio, who will be with her until after the inauguration.

Mrs. Gwendolene J. Estes Bride of Pannell Rucker.

Mrs. Gwendolene Johnston Estes and Mr. Pannell Rucker were married last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Estes' brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles William Byrd, 21 East Ninetieth street, New York City.

The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. John William Johnston and Mrs. Johnston, of Bedford, Va., and a cousin of Senator Benjamin Ryan Tillman and Representative George D. Tillman. Mr. Bucker is a son of the late Col. Pannell Rucker and the late Mrs. Francis Stevens Rucker, of Martinsville, Va., and a grandson of the late Benjamin Stevens, of St. Louis, Mo., and Virginia.

Capt. Samuel Anderson Johnston, of Bedford, Va., gave his sister in marriage and her niece, Miss Jacqueline Cary Byrd, a student at Chevy Chase School, was her attendant. Mr. and Mrs. Rucker will be at home at Martinville, Va.

Mrs. Eva Whitford Lovette and Miss Ethel Lynn Fant will sing at the current events section dinner of the Women's City Club this evening. The speakers will be Mr. Charles G. Ross, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and the Rev. George F. Strohaver, scientist member of the faculty of Georgetown University.

Mr. George B. McClellan is in New York for a short visit.

The League of American Penwomen, District of Columbia branch, will entertain at a Salon Francais this evening when there will be a musical program and a discussion of Balzac, by Leon Dostert, of Georgetown University.

Wilson College Promenade Is Set for Friday.

The third annual all-college promenade of Wilson Teachers College will be held in the main ballroom of the Willard Hotel Friday evening, from 9 to 1 o'clock. This prom is the outstanding social function of the year, and the united efforts of the entire student body and faculty are put forth to insure its success.

Mr. James Brammell, president of the sophomore class, heads the committee in charge of arrangements. Those to whom the committee has extended invitations to serve as honorary patrons are: Senator Henrik Shipstead, Representative Mary Norton, Dr. Frank Ballou, Dr. Hayden Johnson, Dr. Abram Simon, Dr. George Whitwell, Mr. Henry Gilligan, Mrs. Henry G. Doyle, Mrs. Philip S. Smith, and Mr. John Riecks, president of the senior class.

Young Democrats' Winter Ball at Carlton Tonight.

A distinguished group of members of Congress and others prominent in Democratic circles are expected to attend the Young Democrats' second winter ball at the Carlton Hotel this evening. They are Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana; Senator and Mrs. William H. King, of Utah; Senator M. M. Logan, of Kentucky; Senator Richard B. Russell, of Georgia; Representative W. Carlton Mobley, of Georgia; former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herrick and Mrs. A. H. Grimsley.

Miss Ruth Molyneaux, who was voted "Campus Queen" of George Washington University at the student carnival last spring, will head the trio of stars from the George Washington Troubadors, dramatic organization of the university, which will furnish the entertainment at the ball. With Miss Molyneaux are Joe Danzansky and William "Sook" Kennedy. All three had leading roles in the Troubadors' production of "Oh Say Can't You See" at the McKinley auditorium last fall. Dan Beattie, coauthor of the production, will act as accompanist.

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Mother dear: Now that Mrs. Gary is leaving, she is bequeathing me her pal, Claire Stewart, who lives in the apartment next to me on the other side from Mrs. French. (Mrs. French is turning out to be a kind, sweet person, but being lame she stays mostly in her room. Claire has two more weeks, and she says that at the end of that time I will commence to be happy just by comparison with the newcomers. She has a little boy and a trained nurse here and two children at home. Last night I sat in her apartment a long time listening to her praises of the man whom she is going to marry. While we were talking he called her on the telephone. I fled down the hall to my room after hearing "Hello darling," and "Oh, I love you so! Another day gone!" I have no doubt that the telephone operator could write a blood-curdling romance. Claire says they talk at least once a day for any where from ten minutes to half an hour. It is $5 for three minutes to New York, station to station call, after 8:30. But what are three minutes to them! And often she is taken with a sudden desire to talk to him in the middle of the afternoon.

My early impressions of Reno's disillusioned women have been supplanted by a far more prevalent love sickness. Every one has it in the worst way. It is a feat of conversational agility to keep them off the subject. I couldn't imagine what they were all running off whispering for when first met "the girls." Now I know. They just had to talk about their "nexts," and I am a good audience, having no "next" to come back at them with.

I took Sir Wilson Tree, whom I was surprised to meet in the elevator, to a pajamaed cocktail party this afternoon. He is on his way to California and stopped off here to receive a degree from the university. The local talent and the girls were much impressed, but Marie didn't know who he was, and asked him if his wife had signed. Which nearly broke up the party.

MICHIGAN'S BANK HOLIDAY.

By taking prompt action Gov. Comstock of Michigan has averted a crisis in the financial affairs of Detroit, and there is reason to expect that adjustments will be made which will make the Michigan financial situation unassailable. Owing to disagreements among large depositors there was fear that withdrawals might embarrass the Guardian Trust Co., owned by the Guardian Detroit Union group, operator of 20 banks and trust companies in Michigan. The Guardian Trust Co. is negotiating for an advance of $23,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Heavy shipments of gold having been made to Detroit yesterday, it is fully expected that arrangements to be made during Gov. Comstock's eight-day holiday will enable all banks to function as usual.

Wall Street was surprised by the developments at Detroit, but when advised that the Treasury and the R. F. C. had been in touch with the Michigan authorities the chief money market became steady. Although, apparently, the restrictions imposed by law upon the R. F. C. prevent it from making short cuts in meeting local emergencies, the resources of banks are so bountiful that arrangements usually can be made to cope with any development. Notwithstanding the shrinkage of security values, banks everywhere have fortified themselves, and behind them stands the R. F. C. with strength sufficient to withstand any pressure.

During the process of readjustment in this depression it is to be expected that failure or refusal of individuals to cooperate for mutual safety may bring about local crises. These can be met by calling upon the R. F. C. That powerful agency is discharging its functions. It is holding impregnable the fortress of American solvency. The least that banking institutions and large depositors can do is to make mutual accommodations in harmony with the Federal program, so that overwhelming forces can be concentrated against any danger point within the country.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY.

The birthday of Susan B. Anthony, Feb. 15, is marked by numerous memorial ceremonies in her honor, and the thoughts of innumerable men and women turn gratefully to her.

The statesmanlike foresight, unyielding persistence and sublime moral character of Susan B. Anthony enabled her to bring blessings upon her fellow citizens, not for a day, but for all time. The nation advanced to new ground because of her power, and it will never retreat. Although her name is identified primarily with the lifelong campaign in behalf of the rights of women, Miss Anthony battled with equal intelligence for the rights of children and for the sanctity of the home. The objective was toward more perfect civilization, whereby all members of society would be safeguarded in their equal rights.

In the long roll of world heroines during the last century are many names that flash forth the fire of courage as displayed in a crisis; of self-sacrifice, of instant action in an emergency, of nobility, all giving luster to the name of woman. At the head of the roll, as befitting one who contributed more good to more human beings than any other, is the name of Susan B. Anthony.

CONSERVING YOUNG CITIZENS.

One of the most commendable relief measures sponsored in the present session of Congress is the Couzens-Reed amendment to the War Department appropriation bill to enlist homeless youths as citizen soldiers. It is estimated that more than 200,000 lads are wandering like derelicts about the country because they can find no employment. Through this measure they may find quarters, food, training and guidance under the direction of competent Army officers.

Senator Couzens abandoned his original plan for merely providing these youths shelter in Army posts. The concentration of so many idle youths, without definite supervision, training or employment, might have led to undesirable results. Under the substitute proposed by Senator Reed and adopted by the Senate, these lads would be enlisted in the military service and given the same excellent training that is provided for the Citizens Military Training Camps each summer. The enlistment would not be for any definite period, however, and boys able to find employment would be free to leave the camps at any time.

The C. M. T. C. have acquired a fine reputation for training in citizenship as well as in military science. They afford the type of activity and instruction that mould neglected youths into stalwart men. By extension of this service to meet the current emergency, boys who now have no care, no supervision, training nor discipline would be given an opportunity to develop into useful citizens, instead of following the almost certain course to vagabondage and crime. Crime prevention work of this type becomes more urgent with the continuation of the depression.

Although these youths would be given virtually the same training as soldiers in peace time, they could not be considered as part of the regular Army, because they would be free to leave the camps at any time to resume working. The all-year-round C. M. T. C. must be regarded as a temporary measure to save a large portion of the men of tomorrow from demoralization. There was not a dissenting voice in the Senate against this measure of human conservation. None should be heard in the House.

FOR AN EARLY SESSION.

As it becomes evident that many vital matters of legislation will not be completed by the present Congress, the importance of calling the extra session at as early a date as possible is emphasized. There can be no general advance in business activity and greater employment until policies are determined which affect the calculations of industry, commerce and finance. It must be clear that no business man can plan for the future until he has more definite information with regard to tariffs, currency, banking, taxation and various regulatory laws.

The hope has been expressed that the extra session would be able to conclude its work in sixty days. Such brief life for a session would be unprecedented. It has not happened even when Congress had to consider fewer and much less important issues that the 73rd Congress will be called upon to decide. Four months has been the usual minimum of extra sessions, and they have more frequently run from the spring until November.

If the new administration takes office with an executive program soundly formulated and ready for presentation to the extra session with party discipline organized to insure prompt action, industry will obtain the information it needs to make plans for new activity. Until the all-important questions that enter into the computations of costs of raw materials, of manufacture, of distribution and of sale are settled it is but natural that business must continue to mark time.

The lack of solidarity shown in this last session of the 72nd Congress by the party which will be in entire control of the next session does not offer much encouragement for prompt and harmonious action. But the Democratic President will enjoy the prestige and authority conferred by an overwhelming victory, and it is to be hoped that promptness will be the watchword. With a balanced budget, as assurance that this nation can set the example by putting its own finances in order, the commercial world will pray for prompt and decisive action on all important pending matters. Short of inflationary or other legislation that would adversely affect the American dollar, ruinous appropriations or trade regulations, business asks nothing so urgently as definite settlements. Business can adjust itself to almost anything except uncertainty.

HOUSE AIDS HOARDING.

Another wave of hoarding seems to be under way. The volume of currency outstanding increased $53,000,000 last week. Such an increase is entirely abnormal at this time of the year. For the last four weeks the volume of currency in the hands of the public has been on the increase, against the seasonal trend.

At the same time gold stocks have been diminishing. Last week $13,000,000 in gold left the country. Since January 18 gold stocks have declined $31,000,000. Together with the increased demand for currency, this movement has reduced bank reserves. Excess reserves of member banks of the Federal Reserve system have fallen $100,000,000 during the last month. The result of this movement is, of course, to reduce the funds available for expansion of business and for the protection of the banking system.

The trend toward hoarding was serious enough to bring about reversal of the Government's open market policy. For several weeks the Federal Reserve system has been reducing its holdings of Government bonds. The return flow of currency immediately after Christmas enabled the system to sell $88,000,000 of such securities without impairing the excess reserves of member banks. In the last two weeks that policy has been reversed to maintain banking reserves. The current report of the Federal Reserve Board shows the purchase of $20,297,000 of Government bonds last week.

Aside from the general stagnation of business there seems to be only one reason for this renewed tendency of the public to withdraw money from the banks. Weaknesses in the banking structure have not been corrected. In some parts of the country failures have again reached alarming proportions. Louisiana was saved from a panic last week only by the timely action of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Yet the House of Representatives refuses to take any action to alleviate this condition.

The banking bill was passed by the Senate several weeks ago. It provides for branch banking in States where that practice is permitted by State law. In these States hundreds of small tottering banks might be saved by absorption into larger institutions. Other States would doubtless take advantage of the branch banking section through action of their legislatures.

Another section of the banking measure would establish a liquidating corporation for closed banks. Millions of dollars now tied up in defunct institutions could thus be liberated to people who are in need. But the leaders of the House ignore this distressful state of affairs. No effort has been made by the banking and currency committee to conduct hearings on the bill or to carry it before the House. It is evident that this vital measure is in a pigeonhole.

The banking bill is one of the few constructive measures that Congress might pass at this session. The lack of interest manifested by the House in this vital problem is an affront to the distressed American people.

PUNISHING THE DISABLED.

Col. John Thomas Taylor, Washington representative of the American Legion, calls attention to the absurdity of the Bratton economy amendment as it would apply to the Veterans' Administration. It would require the Veterans' Administrator to save 5 per cent on the entire $945,988,000 that is appropriated for the care of veterans. Theoretically the administrator would be allowed to use his discretion as to where cuts may be made with the least possible injury to the service. But actually he is limited to a reduction of those expenditures that are not fixed by law.

According to the calculations of Col. Taylor, $830,300,000 of the total appropriation to the Veterans' Administration represents allowances, pensions and compensation to veterans. These expenditures can not be reduced without changes in the law. Congress has made no such changes in the law. Hence, the entire saving of $47,279,000 which this amendment would require of the Veterans' Administration would have to come from the $115,688,000 allotted to hospitalization and overhead expenses of the bureau. The effect would be to reduce by 43 per cent the funds available for these purposes. Hundreds of veterans in need of medical treatment would be left to care for themselves, and the administration of veterans' affairs would be hopelessly crippled.

The $830,300,000 which could not be touched under this so-called economy program includes most of the $400,000,000 which is paid to veterans who never saw a battle front and others who served without incurring any injury or disability. In other words, the indefensible doles would be preserved and the administrative work of caring for actually disabled ex-service men would be cut off. It is doubtful whether the Senate has ever passed a measure more reeking with injustice than this.

Economy in the Veterans' Administration should be approached from precisely the opposite direction. Doles and pensions to those who have acquired disability in civil life should be cut off, saving about $400,000,000. Then the administrative expenses of the Veterans' Administration could be reduced, not by 5 per cent, but by several times that much, without denying any war-disabled veteran the treatment to which he is entitled. When an attempt is made to penalize the disabled for the sake of maintaining handouts that have no connection with war service it is not surprising that the people despair of congressional intelligence.

CONDITIONS IN CUBA

By RUSSELL PORTER, in the New York Times.

President Machado of Cuba, in an interview with this reporter in Havana recently, expressed optimism over the financial and economic future of Cuba and declared that he would continue to make payments on the foreign debt as long as he remained in power. The government would meet its financial difficulties, he said, by economy and prudence.

President Machado defended the closing of the University of Havana as caused by student violence in a controversy over discipline, and said that his attempts to reopen the university had been thwarted by the desire of the faculty to make "a political issue out of a student affair."

"I do not believe that we are on the edge of a financial and economic collapse," said President Machado, replying to a question about the general condition of government finances. "On the contrary, I consider that we will gradually improve. No matter how low the price of sugar may be, it always represents many millions of dollars on account of the crop. The country's economy will be benefited by that, and also by the sales of tobacco and truck farm products and by the income resulting from tourist travel, all of which we owe to our climate.

Questioned regarding complaints of Havana business men that business is suffering from fear and uncertainty resulting from unrest and violence, President Machado replied:

"Commerce and finance suffer through many causes. If possibility of war did not exist, if there was no agitation in any nation, yours as well as mine, in North as in South America, in Europe as in Asia; if we had not abandoned ourselves to high tariffs, to nationalistic commerce, to the persecution of foreign products, as happens in all parts of the world, especially with sugar burdened in the United States by about 300 per cent at present prices and manufactured tobacco more than 200 per cent; and if, finally, there were no interior Bolshevist agitation, taking advantage of the hunger and misery of the people—there surely would be less uncertainty for commerce and finance here in Cuba and in the rest of the world. There is less uncertainty and less fear in Cuba than in other parts of the world, for here there is faith in the forces of the government and in the rectitude of those who govern."

At the conclusion of the interview President Machado, replying to an invitation to make any statement he wished to clarify his attitude on any phase of the Cuban situation, returned to political subjects, and said:

"I do not harbor hate against my political opponents who are agitating in the United States. I have always opened my arms to them, and am disposed to continue in that attitude always. I am not nor do I wish to be a dictator. I would give up the power I hold if I were sure that my country would not fall into disorder, and if such an action would not represent a dangerous precedent whereby the outcries of a few might decide the fate of a government."

Getting Adams' Apple.

POST HASTE

Late reports indicate that enough of P. M. Gen. Farley's army have been evacuated from Miami to give the Roosevelt party room to land.

Maybe the President-elect secured a supply of whalebone from that prize catch to reinforce the congressional vertebrae.

If Japan really intends to make war, China may withdraw her minister from Tokyo. Such patience is dangerous.

Economy, according to Congress, is slicing retirement pay from a few hundred officers who have served a lifetime in the Army or Navy, and continuing a handout of $400,000,000 to hundreds of thousands of veterans whose few weeks of service left them unscathed.

President Hoover seems to think it is better for the U. S. to help other nations back on the gold standard than let them pull us off.

The number of people who can divine the Roosevelt mind is amazing. Norman Thomas predicts he will recognize Russia, and yet Thomas doesn't even know Prof. Moley.

What is the prevailing wage scale when work isn't prevalent? How about a rule also for dividends and interest payments when there are none?

After Ramsay MacDonald's latest debt talk, Neville Chamberlain knows how a punctured trail balloon feels.

Argentina is always doing the most original things, and now orders March 1 payment of three international debt services.

Of all the nearly close to the Roosevelt throne claimants, Jim Farley remains the genuine article.

The easiest thing the 72nd Congress does is to leave it to the 73rd.

Democracy begins by announcing that no one will be barred from the inaugural ball through failure to own or rent an open-faced suit. Come right from the train, with three cheers for Jacksonian simplicity.

There is talk of inconveniencing inaugural visitors with an extra dry enforcement patrol. This might delay delivery several minutes and increase prices 10 per cent.

Another nameless war starts in South America. Japan prepares for a free hand in continental defense measures, and France doesn't like the way the watch on the Rhine is ticking.

THE PLAIN ROAD.

Let my road be the plain road,
The simple and the sane road,
The road where friendly men abide,
Dividing joys and woes.
I want to fare the same road,
The pleasure and the pain road,
The road that winds through all the cares
Which everybody knows.

I would not take the high road,
The beautiful "this is my road,"
The road which seems to run away
From other people's care,
I would not tread the blind road,
The selfish "never mind" road
Which leads to cold forgetfulness
Of pain that others bear.

I want to walk the long road,
"The understanding wrong" road,
The road where flowers of pity bloom
And pomp is seldom seen.
I want to walk the true road,
The common dare and do road,
Where men forgive the faults they find
And hearts are seldom mean.

If He Swims Worse Than You, Why Cling to Him When the Boat Sinks?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOME weeks ago three students in Paris played a cruel joke to exhibit the ignorance of statesmen.

Using the printed letterhead of a mythical "Ethical Defense League of Newfoundlanders and Guatemalans," with a mythical home office address in New York, they sent typed letters to 72 members of the French Chamber of Deputies.

The letters appealed for moral support and justified the appeal on the following grounds:

That 2 States of the 44 in the Republic of the United States are denied their rights;

That these two are Newfoundland and Guatemala;

That Newfoundland, taken from the Incas by Cortes, has 2,000,000 citizens who still speak Spanish;

That Guatemalans, conquered by Don Pedro of Syracuse in 1456, still speak Portuguese;

That these two states are allowed only one senator while others like New York are allowed 12;

And, finally, that the French deputies should support their fight for justice as many European statesmen, including Lloyd George, had done.

A hoax based on such absurdities couldn't fool a normal American school child above the fifth grade, but 9 of the 72 deputies answered the letter and promised their support. Doubtless many others were taken in, but were unwilling to commit themselves—as important men frequently are in such cases.

Doubtless the story amuses you, as it amused Paris, but there is something about it that isn't funny.

These stupid and ignorant men help to rule France; and France dominates Europe, interferes with America's plans and helps to determine the destiny of Asia.

Even less funny is the reflection that French deputies doubtless are as well informed as other representatives of the people.

They are incredibly ignorant of America, but how many members of the House of Representatives are less ignorant of French politics and history?

This isn't a plea to elect abler men. It is merely a reminder that our public servants are ordinary men, neither wiser nor better informed than you are.

If you could end the depression, perhaps they can.

But you will fare better if you buckle down to solve your own problems, without hope of miracles, and ask nothing of Congress except an honest effort to do you no further injury.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Disabled Veterans Penalized.

New York Herald Tribune.

There is undoubtedly plenty of room for economy even in the money spent on the conduct of hospitals and other executive routine of the Veterans' Administration. Evidences of extravagance here are the subject of common report. But it should be remembered that, whatever this waste may amount to, it is for the most part incidental to the care of these former soldiers who really have a claim on the Treasury—those who were disabled in the service of their country. The appropriation for their benefit should be the last to suffer a trimming instead of the first and only one within the veterans' relief category. It is characteristic of Congress, however, that it should make the genuine wards of the Nation pay for the perquisites it lavishes on the much greater number of undeserving claimants banded together to drain the Treasury dry. Throughout the history of veterans' legislation in this country this species of injustice has been a feature of congressional action. The Bratton amendment is no exception.

These men are not radicals or bolsheviks. They are Americans who have been defeated by ruinous farm prices, and whose last stand in defense of their farms has roused Legislatures to action. In half a dozen States, moratorium bills are in process of passage, and other devices are in preparation to give the agriculturist a respite.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Plea for Veterans Who Can Not Prove War Disability.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you kindly permit the following observations apropos the bill introduced by Senator Smoot, taking from veterans, among other things, the privilege of hospitalization, except for service-connected disability?

The Government has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the erection and equipment of veterans' hospitals. If they are to be open only to those who can prove beyond peradventure service-connected disability most of them will be empty and the money put into them thrown away.

The question of service-connected disability is not always easy of proof. The medical examinations at the time of demobilization were very perfunctory, as every soldier knows, and it can not be denied that there are thousands of veterans now suffering from disabilities that had their origin in the military service, but which they can not establish. Most of these veterans are without means to go to private hospitals. Is it humane or in the social interest to let these men die rather than spend a little money to preserve them? There may be, and doubtless is, some abuse of the privilege, but should all be penalized on that account? The law might with propriety exclude from hospitalization all veterans who have means for private hospitalization.

The following case of a veteran is cited to show the injustice that would be worked by the Smoot bill in many cases. This veteran served throughout the World War in the armed forces of the United States. Prior thereto he had served his country at home and abroad in responsible positions and at great personal sacrifice. From a position of financial affluence he was reduced, through a combination of unfortunate circumstances, to penury. Beginning shortly after his discharge from the military service, he has had one illness after another, including five major sugical operations.

There can be little question that much of his physical troubles had their origin in his military service, but it is impossible to establish it, due largely to the fact that his medical examination at the time of his discharge was merely perfunctory. Two of his operations were emergency operations, and but for the timely attention he received in a veterans' hospital he would unquestionably have died. By reason of his being able to get prompt attention in a veterans' hospital he is now alive.

The question of service-connected disability is strikingly illustrated in the case of President Coolidge. The doctors said that his sudden death was due to the cumulative effect of the strain of his service while President. Likewise with many veterans. Their breakdown and the disabilities they are now suffering undoubtedly had their origin in their war-time service. They are the cumulative results of their service, though there may be nothing in their Army medical record to show or indicate it.

If indigent veterans are not hospitalized by the National Government, which, after all, is a national obligation, the service will have to be supplied by the State or local governments, and there would therefore be no saving in taxation.

ALEXANDER SIDNEY LANIER.

Fatherly Schemes of Government Do Not Seem to Do Much Good—Better Have Sales Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was an interested reader of G. M. U.'s criticism of "Federalist," regarding the latter's contention that centralization, as advocated just now, endangers our system of representative government. G. M. U. thinks the enlarged Muscle Shoals project is not an experiment in "paternalism," but will in fact protect the people from "special privilege."

In its brief space his criticism seems plausible, and it might be convincing but for the fact that right now paternalism may be judged by its fruits. Not a great many years back the Interstate Commerce Commission was established as a fatherly means of protecting the people from special privilege, otherwise known as big business. Other fatherly agencies followed from time to time with the same fatherly end in view. I do not say they have not taught us a good deal and possibly done some good. What I want to get at is that these paternal agencies, after years of trial, have proved far less fruitful than advocates of paternalism asserted they would be. Before enlarging the powers of government by bureaus and the extension of executive authority, we should take a sober second thought as to whether or to what extent our test of paternalism is already responsible for unemployment and the Treasury deficit. And while we are taking that thought, I continue to think the safest course would be to let the people tide us over hard times with a so-called manufacturers' sales tax.

F. C. LYONS.

Workingman Would Be First to Receive Cheap Money.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No additional currency is needed. Years ago Germany tried currency inflation to such an extent that it took a wheelbarrow load of it to buy a box of cigars. No matter how many quadrillions or quintillions were in circulation the poor man was not enriched the least bit, for the few paper marks he could get were practically worth nothing.

Similarly inflation of our currency will not bring prosperity from round any corner. Just the reverse! If by any mischance one dollar becomes of less worth than another it is the hand of the toiler that first receives that depreciated dollar. Congressmen! Don't add to our troubles by inflation!

The Meanderer

Defies Gray Days With Weatherproof Clothes and Complexions for Those Who Must Fare Forth; and With Books and Apples for the Stay-at-Homes.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

No matter what the weather is this minute, The Meanderer defied the rain of yesterday morning to find weather-proof ideas for her readers that they will do well to use or file for reference.

In the merest jiffy a raincoat I found isn't a raincoat at all, but a smart, spring coat of tweed. This coat which will lead a double life for you is of weather-proof cravanette cloth on one side for rain, and turn it inside out and it's a tweed coat. Its lines are modish, too. This coat sells for $16.50 at one of our largest department stores on F street.

No clumsiness such as many of the older raincoats had to endure seems to hang about the new raincoats. The shoulders of raincoats have been given as much attention as have shoulders of other coats. The drop shoulder yoke lines, much in vogue, appear in a cravanette coat which you'd like for an all-weather coat, showing in the store mentioned in the above paragraph. These cravanette, all-weather coats, are priced from $6.50 up. Rubberized silk coats, much liked for their light, comfortable weight, are shown in a new crepe finish, very pretty in white, a rust-red and gray.

Rouge for any weather—rain, snow, mist or shine—is a weatherproof cream rouge in a delightful new shade brought to Washington by a world-famed beautician and now for sale in two department stores on F street. Use just one daily application of this weatherproof, soft, natural cream rouge and you'll stay rosy all day and run no risks of having your cheeks made streakily red with rain. Furthermore, the nourishing cream for eye-lashes, in the same display with the cream rouge, also is weatherproof. This eye-lash cream has magic in its depths, for it darkens the lashes while it supposedly makes them grow, and it may be used, too, for making shadows on the lids that are so subtly flattering. For unruly eyebrows, the eyelash cream may serve as a grooming preparation, entirely imperceptible.

Feet may be trim in goloshes, I learned in a department store opening both on Seventh and Eighth streets. The new goloshes, jersey-lined, which slip on easily with never a fastening, are only $1.95 in this store's big shoe department. Downstairs, in the rubber goods section, the rubber gaiters for 59 cents in black and brown, slip over the toes and protects all the foot but the heel of the shoe.

If umbrella expense is burdensome—and who likes to spend money on such things?—note well that for $1.65 the department store stretching from Seventh to Eighth street on the Avenue has some remarkably good, 16-rib umbrellas. They are in well-finished materials, good colors and patterns, with handles as attractive as those of more expensive umbrellas.

A book and an apple, if you are lucky, may be your defiance of the weather, or the depression or any thing that needs overlooking. "I Was a Spy," written by a Belgian girl, is a thrilling tale awaiting you at one of our best known book stores. The author is M. McKenna, one-time of the British intelligence service, arrested and sentenced to be shot. "Gabriel Over the White House," anonymous, deals with things which may happen by 1940, in an arresting, revolutionary manner, and may interest the many who are puzzled over the economic situation. For pure glamour and entertainment, the obliging manager of the book store recommends "Pageant," by J. B. Lancaster, a story of two English families about 100 years ago.

The apples to accompany the books are spilling over their bushel baskets all about Washington. Some of the best values the Meanderer has seen are along the water-front market in the Southwest, where for $1 a bushel or less you find several most edible kinds of apples.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

THE ONE OVER ONE.

THE confusion of a great many meaningless generalities has muddled the entire subject of "One Over One" bids. Even the meaning of the phrase "One Over One" has become mysteriously vague, so that now there are almost as many One Over One "systems" as there are players. Some of these are so complicated as to constitute almost a private convention, particularly when used against strangers in tournaments. Most of them are adaptable only to the highly artificial match-point form of scoring, and in Rubber Bridge are often disastrous. It is, of course, obvious to any one that all these so-called "systems" are nothing but more or less pronounced variations of the Culbertson (Approach-Forcing) System.

In a general sense, the words "One Over One" simply mean that, in order better to disclose information on strength and distribution of partnership hands, the bidding should, whenever possible, be kept within the range of suit bids and responses of one. Thus the bidding is kept low, and overcrowding of inference is avoided. This is the exact principle which I have fought for almost single-handed since 1922, the time when the notrump ruled supreme and modern distribution was unknown. This principle gave its name to the author's Approach System of Auction. Thus "One Over One" is simply another name for Approaching, which is one of the basic principles of the Culbertson System, which today forms part of any system, be it the Vanderbilt, the Official or the "Never Slip" System.

A One Over One situation occurs in the bidding when a player opens with the bid of one in a suit and his partner responds with a bid of one in another suit, or when partner responds with a bid of one in a suit and the Opening bidder makes still another response with a bid of one in a suit. For instance, assuming that opponents always pass, all the bids in the following situation are One Over One:

| South | North |
|---|---|
| 1♣ | 1♢ |
| 1♡ | 1♠ |

The one notrump response now closes the chain of One Over One bids.

Inferences in partnership bidding may be compared to the telegraphic code of dots and dashes. In telegraphy, the underlying principle is economy of words; in Bridge it is economy of bids.

There are today two interpretations of One Over One bids:

1. The Forcing One Over One bids, which are now obsolete.

2. The part-Forcing One Over One bids, which are new.

I shall discuss briefly the principles of the part-Forcing One Over One. The main difference between the two is that the former requires unconditionally that all suit responses of one call for a response from partner, while the latter allows the Opening bidder to drop his partner's bid of one in a suit on a type of hand that contains a bedrock minimum and lacks even a Queen or favorable distribution. After partner's response to the suit bid of one, the Opening Hand must bid again, except when his hand is a bedrock minimum Opening bid. Even a Queen added to the minimum of 2½ honor tricks of a slightly better distribution requires that the bidding be kept open. For instance, if the Opening bidder holds:

|---|---|
| Spades | 10 5 2 |
| Hearts | 10 7 5 |
| Diamonds | A K 7 4 |
| Clubs | K 10 3 |

and bids one diamond, and his partner responds with one spade, the Opening bidder may pass; but with the club Ace instead of the club King, or a better distribution, the Opening Hand should respond with one notrump. This principle is effective long as the bidding remains within the range of one-bids.

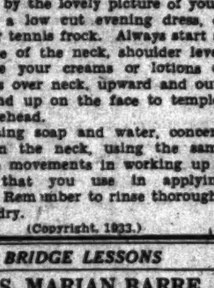
The important part of this system of bidding is that whenever the bid is one in a suit and the response is one in a higher ranking suit, the important negative inference that the hand does not have 3½ honor-tricks is immediately drawn. Thus the possibilities of the hand are usually quite apparent to the Opening bidder after his partner's response to his Opening bid. He knows that the hand does not contain 3½ honor-tricks, otherwise the response would be a Forcing Takeout (a Jump bid in a new suit). Therefore, the Responding Hand holds something between 1 plus and 3 plus honor-tricks.

With the increased premiums for Grand Slams, it is now, more than ever before, necessary to distinguish immediately and precisely between hands containing 3 plus or fewer honor-tricks and those containing at least 3½ or more honor-tricks (the Jump Response of Two Over One), as well as the varying degrees of strength shown through subsequent Rebids.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

Your partner, South, has opened the bidding with one diamond, to which you, as North, respond with one spade. He then bids three diamonds. What do you respond?

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The answer will be given tomorrow.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

ALL the advance beach wear showings, the emphasis on winter cruise wear, promise a gay spring—grays and pinks and pastels predominating, bathing suits abbreviated even more than last year's brevities, suntan or romantic pallor according to the individual's taste—but in all cases a harmony in color of face and neck.

It's the safest way to start in any case. The throat like a swan's is, unfortunately, not a very usual sight, what with the very human tendency to stop at the jawline when treating the face, and with the discoloring effect of fur collars to contend with.

If you treat the neck as part of the face at all times, you will be well rewarded by the lovely picture of yourself in a low cut evening dress, or summer tennis frock. Always start at the base of the neck, shoulder level, and use your creams or lotions or bleaches over neck, upward and outward and up on the face to temples and forehead.

In using soap and water, concentrate on the neck, using the same massage movements in working up a lather that you use in applying cream. Remember to rinse thoroughly and dry.

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 9 a. m. from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:30 p. m. to 1:40 p. m. and from 7:15 to 8 p. m.

You may experience difficulties on this February 15 in reaching decisions, and in getting others to take definite action of any sort. Do not attempt to force the issue on this day, for the results will in such a case prove not satisfactory. You may have occasion during this day to recall vividly a dear one who has passed on.

The child born on this February 15 will be incessantly active; it will probably require less sleep than the average youngster. Its parents will have to be both physically and mentally alert to give it the proper care and guidance necessary for its well being. Do not pamper the child, for it will too readily adapt itself to a life of ease and overindulgence.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

A YARDSTICK FOR LIQUOR.

THOSE who are disposed to be overweight should remember that alcoholic beverages are fattening. In the first place alcohol is a food running rather high in calories. Its toxic qualities are so great that it is not available as a source of food supply, practically speaking, yet those who must avoid overeating must not forget the calories supplied by alcohol. Fifteen minims of pure alcohol, about one-quarters of a teaspoonful, is responsible for seven calories.

Liqueurs run higher in alcohol content than do other alcoholic beverages and, in addition, they are rich in sugar. For both reasons they run very high in calories and the obese, theoretically, should avoid them above all other drinks. However, they contain so much aromatic oils and are, therefore, so highly toxic, that no one drinks enough of them to cause obesity. A teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of creme de menthe is a pretty good drink. In spite of the high content of alcohol and sugar, there are not many calories in a teaspoonful of creme de menthe.

The calories found in various beverages, as measured in lumps of sugar, is given by Christie, as follows:

One glass of hock, Moselle, or claret is equal to 2 lumps of sugar; 2 lumps of sugar supplies 40 calories.

Burgundy, 3 lumps.
Sherry, 3 lumps.
Champagne, 3 lumps.
Benedictine, 6 lumps.
A small whisky and soda, 4 lumps.
A pint of light ale, 12 lumps.
An ounce of gin and vermouth, equal parts, 2½ lumps.
An ounce of gin, 3 lumps.
One ounce of champagne, a lump plus.
Sauterne, 1 ounce, 1 lump.
One ounce of port, 2 lumps minus.
Sherry is a little less than port, and Madeira still less.
Chartreuse and creme de menthe, 5½ lumps.
Brandy, 3 lumps.
Whisky, same as brandy.
German beer, three-fifths of a lump.
Sweet cider, three-fourths of a lump; dry cider, one-half a lump.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

THERE is a Norwegian proverb which says, "A man is as old as he looks, a woman as old as she feels."

I should say that some of us had better visit Norway! To rid ourselves of the personal impression that a woman is as old as she looks, regardless of how she feels! Because, well, because—it isn't so—I mean the prevailing impression outside of Norway.

One of the gayest, most youthful, yet entirely decorative ways to keep a young appearance is by wearing a scarf! Yes, there is no finishing to a costume which can ever quite replace the scarf! And then when you think that you can't make them yourself from such wisps and scraps of things—if you know, of course. Because a scarf requires a well-thought-out design for its being, and a careful finishing for its chic. So we have made a leaflet of scarf designs, a lot of different scarfs you can make from remnants and scraps from the ragbag—and the leaflet is yours for a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send this to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

It just misses being fussy—which is what it should do, of course. For in missing fussiness it acquires chic and a feminine sort of charm. The dress I sketched for you today, I mean. It would be nice for an afternoon on a spring day, too, for its black lace sleeves give it a day and night usefulness. Bernard et Cie are the designers, and in all its lines I see the good tailoring for which this house is famous.

GET RID OF FAT!

The birthright of every woman is a slim, youthful figure. To achieve true happiness, get rid of the mask of ugly fat that is hiding your beauty. Thousands of women have discovered a new world in a simple, practical way to get rid of fat.

Doctors know that when food is taken into the body, it is either transformed into energy, or it is stored in the form of fat. The proper reducing treatment helps the body turn food into energy. That's the way Marmola works. It supplies the normal element that the body itself uses.

With Marmola, more food is used for energy, less is unused to form fat. That's why most people who take it will usually say they feel better than they ever felt before in their lives. And they can hardly believe their eyes as they see that hated fat go.

Try Marmola today. Moderation helps, of course, but starvation diets or strenuous exercises are not necessary. A booklet in every package gives full details. Just see your druggist.

Stocks Regain Composure In Spite of 2.8 Points Loss

Bank Moratorium Causes Flurry; Sales Total 1,543,650 Shares.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Returning from their holiday to learn that a banking moratorium had been declared in Michigan, financial markets generally weakened today, but tended to regain their composure before closing time.

For stocks, selling was concentrated in the first couple of hours when fairly heavy offerings appeared. By noon, however, the market was again dull and in the late trading prices firmed sufficiently to cut down extreme declines from fractions to about a point. As it was, net losses of 1 to around 3 points were numerous and the average recession of 2.8 points was the largest since last October. Volume reached 1,543,650 shares, heaviest in nearly two months.

The Michigan holiday was the most extensive "banking vacation" so far experienced and presumably led to selling of securities by holders in the area affected. Wall street bankers, familiar with the situation, said it should be viewed as a local difficulty, pointing out that it was basically due to real estate troubles, aftermath of a spectacular boom coincident with expansion of automotive manufacturing.

Rail shares, on the eve of the transportation committee report, slumped rather sharply, but utilities and industrials bore them company. Gold mining issues resisted for a time, though some of them eventually sold off.

Motor stocks were offered in some volume, General Motors and Chrysler closing more than a point lower. United States Steel, American Can, General Electric, Du Pont, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas, North American, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York Central and Woolworth were down 1 to 2 points or so net, while Delaware & Hudson dipped nearly 5, Allied Chemical 4 and Santa Fe 3. American Telephone, whose directors meet for dividend action tomorrow, broke below par, but rallied a point from the low, paring its loss to 2¾ net.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

| | Tues. | Sat. |
|---|---|---|
| Advances | 57 | 153 |
| Declines | 485 | 127 |
| Unchanged | 97 | 101 |
| Total issues | 639 | 381 |

Stocks.

News of the Michigan bank moratorium caused heavy selling and a resulting loss of 2.8 points. The turnover totaled 1,543,650 shares. Issues regained composure in late trading.

Bonds.

The market suffered a sharp reaction. Losses averaged 1.1 points, and the sales volume piled up to $14,500,000.

Curb.

Heavy selling sent prices lower. Sales totaled 210,000 shares, the largest turnover since December 29. Oils were fairly steady.

Wheat.

Liquidation sales and the banking situation and reaction of other markets sent wheat prices down. Corn and oats joined the slump. May wheat sold at 48¾ to 46⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Late rallies in cotton cut heavy losses to 7 to 14 points. March sold at 6.02. Liquidation and the Michigan bank situation were blamed. Liverpool reported hedging and continental selling had been offset by buying.

ACTIVE CURB SALES SEND PRICES LOWER

Losses of Fractions to 4 Points Mark Turnover of 210,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Stocks on the Curb Market today declined from fractions to as much as 4 points or so in the most active single day of selling since last December 29. Transfers totaled 210,000 shares, against 140,000 on Friday.

The utility and specialty stocks were heavy. The oils presented a fairly steady front.

Electric Bond & Share confined its net loss to a little more than a point. American Gas & Electric and American Light & Traction also lost a point or more, while fractions were surrendered by Niagara Hudson Power, United Light & Power A, American Superpower and Cities Service. Commonwealth Edison dipped more than 2 points.

Aluminum Co., a fast mover, yielded 4 points. Pan American Airways, which has been a strong spot in recent trading, lost 2. Ford of Canada A was down 1. Ford, Ltd., dipped a small fraction. The Swift issues were a shade lower. Deere, Cord and Stutz lost fractions.

Among the oils Gulf, Humble and Standard of Indiana yielded fractionally. Standard of Kentucky gained slightly.

The metal stocks, including gold shares, which have enjoyed a modest bull market in recent trading, were somewhat lower. New Jersey Zinc lost more than 1, while Newmont was down nearly a point.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading was more active on the stock exchange today, gold mining shares recovering on South African and local buying. Gilt edged securities, industrials and oil shares were steady. Transatlantic issues were uncertain and Chinese and Japanese rails were weak on the latest Far Eastern news. The closing was steady.

Paris—The bourse was calm awaiting the outcome of the budget bill now before the Senate. The closing was quiet.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was quiet and prices showed a weaker tendency. Quotations, however, recovered partly at the close.

Radio-Keith Receivership Suit Dismissed by Plaintiff

Newark, N. J., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Receivership proceedings against the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation were dismissed today by Vice Chancellor Alfred A. Stein on application of Samuel Dreskin, counsel for Miss Doris L. Charing, who started the receivership action on January 24.

The vice chancellor discharged the temporary receivers, Prosecutor Abe J. David, of Elizabeth, and Arthur Walsh, vice president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and ruled that no accounting on their part was necessary as they had taken over no property. No fees were allowed.

Mr. Dreskin gave no reason for asking for a dismissal of the receivership action. Robert H. McCarter, representing R-K-O, consented to Dreskin's application.

Miss Charing, in her application for a receivership, said she was holder of a $2,000 note of the corporation's and alleged that it had defaulted on January 1 on the payment of gold notes in excess of $700,000.

BONDS JOIN LOSSES OF OTHER MARKETS

Volume Increases on Drop, Piling Up Sales Total of $14,500,000.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The bond market suffered a sharp reversal of form today, prices declining rather steeply all through the list in sympathy with the break in stocks and weakness in leading commodities.

Volume increased on the decline, total dealings of $14,500,000 comparing with $10,435,000 on Friday. The average price of 60 representative issues dropped 1 point.

In marked contrast to their buoyancy of last week, rail bonds of all descriptions and with few exceptions yielded sharply under heavy selling. Recent speculative buyers seemed in haste to unload and retire from the market. Demand for the higher grade issues, a vital element last week, was considerably narrowed.

Losses in the carrier division ranging from 2 to 5 points affected some of the obligations of the Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Santa Fe and others.

Securities of motor and motor accessory companies, utilities and others supposedly affected directly by the banking situation in Michigan weakened under persistent selling. Several of the Detroit Edison loans lost from 1 to 3 points, but equal weakness was manifested by other utilities remote from the Detroit situation.

Selling in U. S. Governments caused a further loss of ground, running to more than ¼ of a point in the Treasury 3¾s of 1940, and somewhat less in other Treasury issues and Liberty loans.

Foreign loans were comparatively steady in the early trading, but weakness cropped out in Argentines and some other groups near the close.

Loadings, Power, Steel Show Rising Tendencies

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Statistics appearing in the past week for freight car loadings, electric power production and steel ingot output, generally indicated a slightly rising tendency, according to Moody's index figures for these factors.

These indexes are corrected for seasonal variation—that is, if each change in the actual reported loadings or production amounted to the usual change for the period, the index itself would be unchanged.

WHEAT VALUES DROP ON LIQUIDATING SALE

Securities and Bank Holiday Blamed; Corn and Oats Join Losses.

Chicago, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Liquidating sales by holders of grain resulted today from weakness of securities and from disturbance in Michigan banking circles.

Wheat suffered a fall of 1⅞ cents a bushel, and finished at the lowest point reached. Near-record big shipments of wheat from Argentina and Australia had a contributing bearish effect.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady, ⅞ to 1⅝ under yesterday's finish; corn, ½ to ¾ down; oats, ⅝ to ½ off, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents lower.

Restraint on Sellers.

Acting as somewhat of a restraint on sellers was 1,686,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply, reducing the total to 149,452,000 bushels, compared with 202,608,000 a year ago. Another steadying influence on the downturn of values was word of new purchases of Argentine wheat for China. It was announced China had contracted with Argentina for 30,000 tons of wheat, and was also contracting for wheat from Australia. New export business in North American wheat was estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels.

In some quarters, particular significance was attached to Washington advices that the Japanese-Chinese military situation was regarded as at the most critical stage since the outbreak of the Manchurian difficulties in September, 1931. It was intimated China was in the market for Canadian wheat as well as shipments from Southern Hemisphere countries, and that the new crisis might broaden decidedly the scope of Oriental demand. Moisture in domestic winter wheat territory southwest continued subnormal, with drainage from low temperatures generally admitted, but the extent of harm indefinite.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat and as a result of enlarged rural offerings of corn.

Provisions were easier, responsive to weakness of hog values.

COTTON RALLY CUTS HEAVY EARLY LOSS

May Closes at 6.02 as General Market Drops 7 to 14 Points.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Cotton reacted to nearly the low levels of last week today, but firmed toward the close. Selling was attributed largely to liquidation influenced by the bank holiday in Michigan and the action of the grain and stock markets. After showing net losses of 22 to 29 points, with May selling off to 5.90, the market rallied on covering and day closed at 6.02, the general market finishing 7 to 14 points net lower.

The opening was 1 to 7 points higher on further trade and commission-house buying which was evidently encouraged by steady Liverpool cables. Houses with Liverpool and Continental connections were early buyers, but demand was supplied by realizing and selling through brokers who sometimes operate for the cooperative interests.

Offerings increased after the call, as if influenced by the early action of the stock market, and while trade demand increased around the 8-cent level for May, the decline was only momentarily checked. The market later sold off another 10 points, or back to about last week's point of resistance. March broke to 5.77 and July to 6.00, but offerings were then absorbed and more than half the losses were recovered during the last half hour. March closed at 5.91 and July at 6.15.

More Cotton Consumed.

The census report, showing 471,202 bales consumed in this country in January compared with 434,726 last year, was about in line with expectations and without apparent effect on the market. Brokers who sometimes act for the cooperative interests were credited with selling quite persistently, some estimates placing the amount at around 30,000 bales.

Otherwise, little Southern selling was reported and except for covering toward the close, buying was attributed largely to the trade. Reports published over the week-end that the Senate Agriculture Committee had voted to exclude all commodities except wheat and cotton from the domestic allotment bill received little comment in connection with the day's market.

Increased estimates of last week's sales of cotton goods which some authorities now place at about 70,000,000 yards may have helped the opening market. Liverpool cables said hedging and continental selling had been offset by local buying. Exports today 49,923, making 5,372,210 so far this season. Port receipts 22,479. U. S. port stocks, 4,682,283.

Cotton Seed Oil.

Bleachable cotton seed oil was easier under liquidation and commission house selling principally in the more distant positions, influenced by the easiness of cotton, grains and lard. Final prices were 4 points net lower on active positions with sales of 10 contracts, or 1,500 barrels. Bleachable spot closed 3.55; March, 3.72; May, 3.83; July, 3.95; September, 4.08.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

All interested parties—M. A. Leese, owner of Station WMAL; the Washington executives of the National Broadcasting Co., and Joy Elmer Morgan, chairman of the National Committee on Education by Radio—will be heard by the Federal Radio Commission, beginning at 10 o'clock this morning, when the hearing gets under way to determine whether Station WMAL is to be allowed to pass into the hands of the N. B. C.

The agreement between Mr. Leese and the N. B. C. was drawn up and would have become effective February 1 but for the charges of monopoly, set forth by Joy Elmer Morgan in an open letter to members of Congress.

The N. B. C. is now ready to take over WMAL. Office space in the National Press Building has been expanded, several additions have been made to the staff, and all that is needed to bring the WJZ network offerings into the National Capital is the official sanction of the Federal Radio Commission.

If the transfer of license is not approved, Washingtonians may get several of the WJZ programs anyway, since there is nothing to prevent the N. B. C. buying time on WMAL. Already several features not heard in the National Capital heretofore, including "Great Moments in History," "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round" and the Westinghouse series, are being presented over WMAL.

COMMEMORATING the thirty-fifth anniversary of the destruction of the United States battleship Maine, a special program under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans will be presented over WRC at 1:30 p. m. The speakers will be Patrick J. Callan, commander of the District of Columbia Department of the United Spanish War Veterans; Cuban Ambassador Don Oscar B. Cintas and William J. Otjen, commander in chief of the United Spanish War Veterans. The Rev. Ralph C. Deibert, chaplain of the United States Army, will give the invocation, and the Rev. William M. Laroche, chaplain of the District of Columbia Department of the United Spanish War Veterans, the benediction. The musical program will present Hazel Arth, contralto soloist, and the United States Marine Band. The broadcast will come from the riding hall at Fort Myer, Va.

---

Alfred Mintus, of Berlin, Germany, has produced a walking stick radio set. The cane forms its own ground and antenna.

---

Senator George W. Norris will deliver the principal address at the banquet of the University of Nebraska Alumni Association tonight (WRC, 9 o'clock). His subject will be "Muscle Shoals."

---

The approach of a visitor to the vault of a New York bank is announced by an electric eye, which receives its beam from a mirror opposite.

---

Cosmic rays will be heard for the first time when a demonstration of their speed and power is broadcast over WJSV at 4 o'clock today. The microphones will be set up in the vault of a bank in downtown Manhattan, next to an apparatus which records the arrival of the electrons. Dr. W. F. G. Swann, one of the outstanding authorities on cosmic rays, will have charge of the demonstration and broadcast.

THE following is from Mr. R. J. M., a Chevy Chase, D. C., lecturer:

"In your column recently, in commenting on the radio program "The Corn Cob Pipe Club of Virginia" (WRC, 10 p. m., every Wednesday), you expressed an interest in the master of ceremonies on that hour, but you did not know anything about him.

"I am a weekly listener to this program, and I think it is just about the best on the air. Last week I sent in my application for membership, and in a postscript asked for information about the master of ceremonies. I received a very prompt and courteous personal letter with the following information which I thought you might be interested in:

"The name of the master of ceremonies is Pat Binford, son of Jesse H. Binford, superintendent of the Richmond schools. He is 32 years old and has for many years been interested in amateur theatricals, attaining considerable popularity before going on the air. When the Corn Cob Pipe Club was started on WRVA about five years ago, he was asked to take part, and later he took over directorship of the program. Pat helps in plotting out each program and never uses script or continuity. He takes part in the singing at times and dances about the studio, giving a complete performance of his own for the benefit of the visible audience.

"I hope you can use the above information in some way or other, and trust it will be of interest to you. Let me say, incidentally, that I enjoy your column in The Post, and hope it continues to appear there for many years to come."

THE sponsor will defray all wire charges and other expenses to pick up Eddie Cantor in Florida, or from other spots en tour with the Cantor-Jessel vaudeville road show. This differs from Al Jolson, who personally went into his own pocket for $1,200 for the remote pickups from Miami during his winter vacation.

"Economic reason figures, as Jolson's $5,000 broadcast is twice Cantor's," Variety confides. "Latter receives $2,500, plus $750 for script, the latter having been a voluntary contribution by the advertising account as a sort of bonus, similar to the film studio idea. But Cantor has been paying writers like Sid Silvers, Jack Yellen and David Freeman $300 a week each, off and on, besides spending the entire script allowance for material.

"In view of Cantor's no-squawking amenability, the ad agency will defray the pick-up charges and also the expenses of Jimmy Wallington, the announcer and Cantor's straight man. Wallington has joined the comedian in Miami, where Cantor will vacation a couple of weeks, and then continue about three more weeks with the vaudeville tour, in each instance being picked up for the air on the road."

FRED WARING and his Pennsylvanians made their debut on the Old Gold program the other evening on the thirteenth anniversary of the founding of the band. The Pennsylvanians were organized at Penn State College in 1920 by Brothers Fred and Tom Waring and the drummer, Poley McClintock.

The Marx Brothers—Groucho and Chico—got a renewal of their Standard Oil air contract for an additional thirteen weeks at $6,500 a performance for the two comics, a West Coast dispatch reports. In addition they are allowed an extra $1,000 for writer expenses.

The half-hour program will cost the Standard Oil Co. around $12,500 under the new arrangement. The remainder of the cost includes $2,500 for radio time, $1,000 for music and production expenses and around $2,000 in line charges.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler will be the principal speaker at the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform luncheon over WJSV at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: I am a young girl of twenty-two. I was married at the age of eighteen. My husband has broken my heart and it would seem that the whole world is braced against me, to do me harm. I see no hope in life. Is there?

Answer: Yes, plenty of hope. Why, at the age of 22 you are just out of your teens—just as the age when you should be picking the choicest fruits from the tree of life.

You have had a disappointment. So have I—so has everybody else, but we are not letting it get the best of us. You are.

Remember the whole world can not be braced against you. It is more likely that you have braced yourself against the world. The world is a kindly old place and has a big heart, and stands with open arms to welcome and succor her children.

You are sitting by an old tomb. Get up, shake off the dust of the past, take a bath in the sunlight of promise, and see how different the world will look. She will fawn at your heels and paw you with gentle hands.

Adam made a mistake, so I am told, in the Garden of Eden, but it did not put much of a blight on his after life. The world was just as beautiful, and because you have had the misfortune to be crossed in love is no reason at all for you to feel that the world is against you. The world is for you every time. . . .

Dry those tears, reset that creaking soul, and go out for that which God intended you to have—a full share of human happiness which is the heritage of every man and the God-given birthright of every soul.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

DICK TRACY—It Was Like This—

YEAH—THAT'S WHAT I SAID, STOOGE—WHAT'S EATIN' YOU? —SOMETHING'S HAPPENED!
WELL, IF YOU MUST KNOW—
—I SENT A WIRELESS MESSAGE EAST TELLING THE GANG ABOUT THE SUCCESSFUL JOB I PULLED OFF ON THE DICK AND SAYING I WAS ON MY WAY HOME. I PUT THE ORIGINAL COPY OF THE MESSAGE IN MY POCKET—IT DROPPED OUT WHEN I WAS AT THAT TRUEHEART DAME'S HOUSE—SHE FOUND IT — STARTED TO CALL THE COPS—AND I SHOT HER
YOU-YOU WHAT? OH, YOU CLUMSY PIG! OF ALL THE BLUNDERING HALF-WITS! YOU'LL HAVE US ALL IN THE JUG, NOW! DIDN'T I TELL YOU TO LEAVE THAT DAME ALONE AND SCRAM OUT OF TOWN TWO WEEKS AGO?
DON'T WORRY—I'M GOING.
MEANWHILE—AT THE HOSPITAL..
"STOOGE"... ...FRAMED.... ..TRACY.
IF SHE'D ONLY GIVE US MORE DETAILS.
SHE'S STILL OUT OF HER HEAD.
SHE'S TRYING HARD TO TELL US SOMETHING.

CARNERA REFUSED TITLE BOUT AFTER SCHAAF DIES

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

IF it was a fake, Ernie Schaaf seems to have carried his end of the act a bit too far.

With the charges of fake ringing against ears that heard not from the time that he went down in the thirteenth round under the last of the hundred lefts that Primo Carnera shoved his way, Ernie Schaaf died yesterday and proved that the bout was on the level.

He didn't die to prove that he wasn't a faker, but his death quieted the suspicions of the 20,000 in Madison Square Garden last Friday night who hooted their derision while Ernie was in there absorbing the clubbing from the 264-pound giant from Italy.

Public Wrong as in Case of Valentino.

The public was wrong again, as wrong as it was a few years ago when Rudolph Valentino lay on his deathbed in New York with the doctors' bulletins broadcasting his serious condition, which the public put down as simply more clever publicity for the great lover of the screen.

And then Valentino died. And the public was jarred out of its composure. It is likened to Schaaf's case. The fighter's removal to Polyclinic Hospital across the street after the bout with Carnera appeared to be all a part of the act to make the fight look good. The doctors' bulletins again told of Schaaf's serious condition, but there was no undue agitation among fight fans on that score. The fake was the thing, and it consumed their interest.

And then Schaaf died. Suspicions of the fake vanished like magic. No fighter was going to take the last count for the sake of appearances. It was on the level after all. And Schaaf was the young fellow who was in there trying to make a fight out of it. If martyrdom ever belonged to a fighter, it belongs to Schaaf. For he went out of this world virtually one opposed to the weight of public opinion. His death alone cleared his name of a stigma wrongfully bestowed by an erring public.

Suspicion Long Directed at Fight.

Suspicion was directed at the bout from the time it was announced that the winner would meet Jack Sharkey. The fight developed another case of fight fan psychology. Warned well in advance by certain metropolitan critics that all was not well with the bout, with hints of "in the bag" widely broadcast, the fight public turned out in the greatest numbers of the indoor season to see the fight that "wasn't on the level."

It's an old story of the prize ring industry. The breath of suspicion blown in the direction of any bout proves the greatest of all turnstile magnets. There was the case last month when Seaman Watson, the British challenger, fought Fidel LaBarba. Watson, in a trial showing, was severely beaten by three preliminary boys in a gymnasium. It was apparent that he was no match for LaBarba.

The New York Athletic Commission, however, finally sanctioned the bout on the grounds that the fight public was now aware of the unevenness of the match and could stay away if it chose. And what happened? The crowd that turned out in the Garden that night was exceeded only by the throng at the Schaaf-Carnera bout. Verily, the fight fan is a peculiar critter.

Sarron Stops De Angelo In 7th

D. C. Featherweight Is Punching Bag for Dixie Champion.

Referee Halts Fight; Taylor, Young Van Win Decisions.

PETE SARRON, Dixie featherweight champion, made his bow before Portner's Arena fistic patrons last night and gave Frankie De Angelo a combined boxing and punching lesson that caused Referee Charlie Short to halt the proceedings after one minute of the seventh round had elapsed.

The main fight on the program for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery, the scrap was billed for eight rounds, but the hairy-chested, stockily constructed Birmingham, Ala., boxer proved his mastery early in the proceedings, punching the District Italian so furiously that De Angelo was forced to duck his head and cover his face with his gloves to ward off what punishment he could.

Sarron, weighing 124½ pounds, lived up to all advance dope as to his fighting reputation. He flashed an uncanny left, and had it cocked for a knockout punch time and again. Somehow or another De Angelo seemed to be able to absorb this type of punch, whether it was fired to the jaw or body. The Italian fighter, who has seen better nights, and who was taking perhaps the worst lacing of his career, carried on gamely until Referee Short did the right thing in the seventh. Sarron unquestionably won every round.

The Southern titleholder, displaying clever footwork and ring generalship, forced the fight from the opening bell. DeAngelo seemed cowed by the swarthy battler's aggressiveness. Sarron punched almost at will as DeAngelo sheltered his chin with his gloves. The Italian's best showing was in the third when he nailed Sarron with two stabbing lefts, but Sarron was quick to retaliate, and slapped DeAngelo with everything except the ring posts.

Nick Antonelli, beaten for four consecutive rounds by Bucky Taylor, steady punching Baltimore fighter, made a gallant comeback in the fifth and sixth, but the Monumental City youngster piled up a tremendous margin on points in the earlier rounds, enough to carry him safely to a unanimous decision in their semiwindup match—one of the best at Portner's this season.

Taylor hammered Antonelli with enough shots to blow up a battleship, but the bouncing Antonelli took them gamely.

Displaying some of the old fire and punch that carried him to success in 1932, Young Van scored a six-round decision over rugged Walter Kirkwood in one of the most bruising matches of the year. Van weighed 163 and Kirkwood 160. Van won every round except the third, and finished strong, chasing his opponent around the ring and punching him with stinging rights and lefts. Van's left kept him in front and proved his most effective weapon.

Billy Schwartz, Alexandria baker boy, opened the card by knocking out Soldier Bennett, Fort Washington, in 1 minute and 20 seconds of the first round. A right to the pit of the stomach did the damage. Lloyd Phelps, substituting for Phil Silvers, decisioned Johnny Mays, of Seattle, Wash., in four rounds.

In tribute to the memory of the late Ernie Schaaf, Boston fighter, who died yesterday morning, 1,200 spectators stood in silence for a minute just before the main fight.

Humberta Faces Coleman on Mat

The gods of rassling are casting a gold-toothed grimace on the fair features of Jacques Humberto, the rassler, who came here rather inauspiciously several weeks ago, and begins to bloom tomorrow night when Promoter Joe Turner matches him against Abe Coleman, the ingrown matman with dynamo power and compactness.

Humberto is a suave looking fellow who claims the championship of Mexico. Fast, beautifully built, he recently was launched upon a more notorious career when Rudy Dusek fell before him. He has held several of the topnotchers to draws.

The feature bout, as already announced, matches up two-thirds of the hook scissors industry, Fred Grobmeier and Paul Jones. The winner is to meet Joe Stretcher, but tomorrow night's battle will be the better of the two bouts.

Goslin's Drive to Batting Crown Bright Feature of Nats' Drab 1928 Season

Goose Goslin brought the American League batting championship to Washington for the first time in modern baseball history when he hit .379 in 1928 to beat out Heinie Manush by a fraction of a point.

Bucky Harris Regime Ends as Club Finishes Fourth.

(Herewith is the eighteenth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

NINETEEN TWENTY-EIGHT was another disappointing season for Washington fans, for the Nationals played no better fast and it was only because they were able to put on a good rally near the finish that they managed to keep out of the second flight. They finished fourth, trailing the Yankees, Athletics and Browns.

The year marked the end of the regime of Stanley (Bucky) Harris, despite the fact that he piloted his charges home in the money in all of the five years he was in command. The very fans who would have elected Bucky President, had he wanted the job following pennant victories in 1924 and 1925, and a world's title the first of these years, turned on him soon after the 1928 schedule got under way.

Fans Forced Riddance of Harris.

While Harris was not tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail, the result of the cash customers' riding and jeering was almost as effective. With the team off to a bad start, Harris personally was blamed for everything that happened. His batting average dropped to .204 and, when the season ended, Clark Griffith, president of the club, felt that a change was necessary and gave Harris his walking papers. He later landed the managerial job at Detroit, while Walter Johnson was brought here from Newark as his successor.

Individually, Goslin and Braxton brought Washington into the baseball picture, the former by nosing out Heinie Manush by a point, .379 to .378, for the league batting championship and Braxton by showing the way to all moundmen in effectiveness. But, as already mentioned, with his throwing arm useless, Goslin's batting that year was discounted probably 30 per cent.

As far as the Nats were concerned, it was no race at all. They wallowed about in the mire and were last as May ended. They worked up to fifth in mid-June, were fourth for a short spell late in July, and then skidded again, even as far back as seventh. A rally in the final month enabled them to climb back to fourth place and they held it for the last two weeks of the season. It looked like the Yanks would make a runaway of it, as at one time they were 17½ games in front, but they slumped badly near the end and limped home only 2½ games ahead of the A's.

West and Barnes Break Into Outfield.

Tris Speaker was released during the previous off-season and Sam West and Emile (Red) Barnes broke into the outfield, both hitting better than .300. George Sisler was purchased from the Browns for $25,000 and Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones was obtained from them at the waiver price. The latter proved of considerable help, winning seventeen and losing seven, to lead the Nats in percentage of victories, but all the coming of Sisler did was to give Joe Judge a new lease on life. He suddenly lost his so-called brittleness and played in 149 games, batting .306 and finishing second in the league in fielding his position.

Washington's downfall may be blamed on the fact that its pitching staff was generally weak, Bob Reeves flopped as shortstop and "Goose" Goslin injured his arm and could not throw 10 feet. Harris tried to make a starting pitcher out of Fred Marberry and things did not work out well at all. He won 13 games in 26 decisions; Lisenbee, who had registered 18 wins the previous season, won but 2 games out of 8 and later was sent down river; Hadley won 12 while losing 13, with Braxton being the only flinger other than Jones to get better than an even break. His figures were 13 triumphs as against 11 losses.

Rice, Judge, Barnes, Reeves and West finished over .300 and the team ranked fourth on attack. The Nats led in fielding, with West showing the way to the fly hawks and Ruel to the catchers. Judge, Harris and Joe Cronin, accidentally picked up the latter part of the season, rated second in their positions, with Bluege third among the hot-corner guardians. Cronin replaced Reeves as the regular shortstop and has been starring ever since.

President Griffith, who dotes on making big deals, made another in the waning days of the year, getting back Buddy Myer by sending the Boston Red Sox Pitchers Milton Gaston, Horace Lisenbee, Infielders Bob Reeves and Grant Gillis and Outfielder Elliott Bigelow.

Registration Deadline Tonight

Basketers Must File A.A.U. Applications by Midnight.

Registration Is Necessary for Tourney Eligibility.

TONIGHT at midnight, registrations for the A. A. U. basket ball tournament will close with Charles M. Fyfe at the Boys Club, Third and C streets northwest. There will be no extension of time and all not in the fold by that hour will be barred from the big tourney which opens March 2, at Tech High School under the sponsorship of The Post.

A number of teams visited both The Post and the Boys Club yesterday and last night, the vanguard of a last minute rush to get under the wire in time. Applications must be returned to the Boys Club, where Fyfe has arranged to take care of the teams with an augmented staff of assistants.

Team Entries Coming in Fast.

Although it is not necessary to return team entry blanks before midnight, February 23, they continued to flow into the sports department of The Post yesterday. This is regarded as an indication of the interest created by the tourney this year. Teams that can do so are urged to submit their entries as soon as possible to speed up the work of arranging the schedule.

Splendid cooperation of the various clubs around town is certain to bring many more teams into the games than had been anticipated. Charley Reynolds, director of the K. of C. Catholic Boys Club, will have three teams in the field, and possibly a fourth. Reynolds is certain to enter 148-pound, 130-pound and 115-pound clubs and if his well-laid plans materialize there will be a 100-pound team sporting the Casey colors.

Northeast Boys Club, a veritable beehive of enterprising young courtmen this season, will send a trio of teams forth in quest of city championships, while the Washington Boys Club will top the list with a team in every division.

Neighborhood House will enter one club, Georgetown Boys Club two, and the Y. M. C. A., always well represented, is expected to have two also.

Women Golfers Make New Rules

Captains to Name Line-Ups; 14 Handicaps for Second Teams.

A new set of rules to be used this year, one of which gives the team captain the power to arrange the players as she sees fit for team matches, was drawn up yesterday afternoon at a meeting of team captains from clubs that are members of the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association at the home of Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, District team captain.

It was also decided to lower handicaps for players on the second team to 14. Formerly it was 18. Chevy Chase, Woodmont and Washington announced that they would sponsor second teams in the intercity matches this season. Five players will make up the first teams.

Among those present were:

Mrs. G. C. McCornack, Army and Navy; Mrs. Carl Mitchell, Beaver Dam; Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Chevy Chase; Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes and Mrs. Hubbert Quinter, Columbia; Mrs. Gertrude Chapman, Congressional; Miss Betty Meckley and Mrs. Don Scott, Indian Spring; Mrs. Howard Simons, Manor; Mrs. Theodore Peyser, Woodmont; Mrs. D. Tschiffely, Washington, and Mrs. E. A. Rule, Kenwood.

Maryland Routs V. M. I., 45 to 29, As Vincent Stars

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S basket ball quintet extended its winning streak to four, the longest of the season, by handing the V. M. I. Cadets a 45-to-29 lacing last night in Ritchie Coliseum before a crowd of 1,500. The victory was the Old Liners' eighth against as many losses, giving them an even break for the first time since early in the year. It was their seventh win in ten Southern Conference engagements.

In downing the Cadets, Maryland found revenge for a 30-to-29 defeat suffered in Lexington last month.

Auto Record Trial Possibility Today

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 14 (A.P.). Sir Malcolm Campbell, of England, sent his trim Bluebird racing car roaring over the ocean beach course here late today at a speed well in excess of 200 miles an hour on a test run made preliminary to an official assault on his own world land speed record of 253 miles an hour.

Although the 48-year-old British driver was clocked at a speed of 212.63 miles an hour over a two-kilometer route, he said afterward his instruments showed he attained a peak of between 230 and 240 miles an hour on his only run of the day.

Whether he will make an official trial for a new world record tomorrow, Campbell said, will be contingent upon the ability of mechanics to make certain adjustments to the 2,500-horsepower car. He said the machine performed "wonderfully well" under the conditions, but that several alterations would be necessary.

CHESS MASTER AT J. C. C.

The second of a series of chess exhibitions will be presented by the Chess Club of the Jewish Community Center tonight at 8 o'clock when Albert Whiting Fox will meet in simultaneous competition a number of opponents. No admission fee will be charged, and any one desiring to play is invited to bring their own pieces and boards.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

New York Bars Italian Except Against Fighters In "Dreadnaught" Class

Commissioner Muldoon Says He Feared Consequences of Match; Blames Schaaf's Seconds for Fatal Injury.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The tragedy of Ernie Schaaf's death not only deals professional pugilism a severe blow, at a time when it can ill afford any setbacks, but prompted New York's boxing powers today to bar the man who helped carry the unconscious fighter from the ring, Jack Sharkey, from defending his title in June, at least in this State, against the giant who landed the final blow, Primo Carnera.

Doctors' Evidence On Schaaf Differ; Carnera Not Held

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Death came with the dark hours before dawn today to take Ernie Schaaf, tow-headed young Boston heavyweight, and leave shrouded in mystery, one of the most tragic episodes in modern ring warfare.

Scarcely had the boxing world absorbed the news that the youngster was dead, apparently the result of the beating gigantic Primo Carnera delivered him in thirteen rounds in Madison Square Garden last Friday night, before a swift succession of developments revised almost every previous conception of the happenings of the past three days.

Dr. Charles W. Norris, chief medical examiner of New York City, announced that an autopsy revealed "absolutely no evidence that Schaaf died as a result of injuries received in that bout," although Dr. Bryan Stookey, brain specialist who operated on the stricken warrior yesterday in a desperate effort to relieve brain pressure, had declared flatly to the contrary.

Doctors' Diagnoses Differ.

Yet Dr. Benjamin Vance, assistant to Dr. Norris, and the surgeon who performed the autopsy, signed the certificate giving as the causes of death "cerebral hemorrhage and cerebral compression," sustaining Dr. Stookey's diagnosis.

But to heighten further the mystery, Dr. Vance said it was his opinion that some growth, a cyst or tumor hitherto unsuspected, was the real explanation of the compression that paralyzed the fighter's left side and left him in a state of semicoma from the moment he was carried unconscious from the ring until he died

William Muldoon, veteran member of the commission, put through a motion to reestablish the "superdreadnaught" class originally organized here among fighters 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 220 pounds or over in 1931. Muldoon, expressing regret that he had ever sanctioned the match between Ernie Schaaf and Carnera, insisted that never again in New York State would the Italian giant be permitted to fight below the "superdreadnaught" class.

Regrets Sanctioning Schaaf Bout.

Muldoon said that he had been swayed by public opinion in voting approval of the Schaaf-Carnera match, which he now deeply regretted not only because of the fatal accident to Schaaf but because he said he thought such fights where differences in weight were so great totally unfair both to the fighters involved and the public.

"I didn't see the fight but I was afraid of it from the start and now my fears are borne out," Muldoon said. "Carnera is a great athlete from the feet up. He has the speed and agility of a middleweight and as far as punching is concerned he needs no snap to his blows. His weight is enough. He is the greatest physical specimen I have ever seen."

Muldoon said he felt that the seconds in Schaaf's corner were responsible for his fatal injury. He said he thought they should have known the condition of their fighter and refused to let him continue.

It was because of a feeling that the Schaaf-Carnera fight was strictly a "build-up" for the forthcoming championship bout that a majority of metropolitan boxing writers suspected the outcome was "fixed." The "tip" was out that Schaaf, a protege of Sharkey, could not win. But none can say who started it. This, the critics felt, was confirmed by events within the ring, slowly and ponderously leading up to the one and only knockdown of Schaaf, in the thirteenth, by a left jab to the nose.

There was no ferocity, no "man-killing punch" displayed by Carnera at any time, although the bigger man steadily piled up a margin on points over the foe he outweighed nearly 60 pounds. Most of the crowd not only booed throughout the latter half of

DON LEON DRAWS AWAY TO WIN HIALEAH SPRINT FEATURE

Leros Second In Stretch Drive

Favorite, Gilbert Up, Runs 6 Furlongs in 1:11 3-5.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 14 (A. P.).—Don Leon, the Western flash, which carries the black and red banner of R. W. Collins, easily led four other smart sprinters across the finish line in the St. Valentine Handicap, 6-furlong dash, which topped the card here this afternoon. It was a popular victory with a majority of the crowd, Don Leon returning $4.60 for a $2 ticket. Leros, representing J. C. Ellis, was beaten four lengths, while saving the place from J. E. Widener's Mr. Sponge by three lengths. Happy Scot and Supreme Sweet brought up the rear.

Under Johnny Gilbert's capable handling, the winner completed the distance in the good time of 1:11 3-5.

Leros gamely tried to make a real race of it, and for a half mile succeeded in doing so. He maintained a slight advantage over the ultimate winner while sticking to the inner rail, but when the field straightened out for the stretch drive, Don Leon drew into a clear lead as if much the best. Mr. Sponge was rated off the pace for a half mile, but failed to come on under strong urging.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FLA., FEBRUARY 14.

It seems that I recall writing a few words yesterday apropos (whatever that is) the passing of the depression hereabouts. I had no idea, at the time, that prosperity was about to climb aboard the Bennings special in a big way. But down the stretch they came—four in a row—Sky Haven, $3.10; Macadam, $9.30; Periodical (my exclusive pick), $25.50, and Don Leon, $4.40. A $2 straight parlay probably would have brought you a couple of taxicab companies. You can figure it if you have time. As for me, I'm too busy trying to dig you up some for tomorrow. I'll try to tell you more about the money situation here after I see my selections hoof it. BILL.

FIRST RACE—GRIFFIN is no Man o' War and neither am I Christopher Columbus, but between the two of us we may do something with this first race. I expect GRIFFIN to draw one of the classy riders and make no mistakes. MAE SWEEP has been showing some keen speed and may be second. SUN FALCON for the show.

SECOND RACE—FAIR ARGUMENT is very cheap, but so is much of the opposition here. About the only class is ROSEVELT, but this one hasn't been doing much lately. FULL SWING is as good as the rest for the show hole.

THIRD RACE—BLACK SHEEP lives up to his name among the Whitney string, but should muster enough courage to take care of this field and thus escape the maiden ranks. If he doesn't make the grade tomorrow, I feel confident that I can buy him for a saddle horse for about two bits. MORE ANON and BYLAW for the rest.

FOURTH RACE—WISE MOLLIE showed good form the last time and can be named as easily as any of these babies. I won't bet a dime, but the boss insists on my picking them. LITTLE JOYCE and PAPER PROFITS for the place battle.

FIFTH RACE—PORTER'S DREAM gets one more chance. This one is in shape, and I know it. Seems like a tough spot here but at the weights I can't pass up the opportunity to get a real price. BROWN WISDOM and CAPACITY look like they will finish ahead of the rest.

SIXTH RACE—I PASS turned in a whale of an effort the last time and looks good to me. BROAD MEADOWS and ROBINSON CRUSOE for the place and show. I have a sneaky feeling that HAGGERSON might upset them. Worth a saver.

SEVENTH RACE—CHAUMONT put up a swell battle against Royal Ruffian and seems capable of handling this field. FLOSSIE won with a stretch finish recently and may finish ahead of AMERICANA.

EIGHTH RACE—This may be the one for ENGLEWOOD. The oldtimer has shown a return to good form lately. SUNTEATIME and SIS AGNES for the rest.

DOCTORS' EVIDENCE ON SCHAAF DIFFERS

in Polyclinic Hospital at 4:26 this morning.

Complete examination and microscopic analysis of the brain, which would determine absolutely the cause of death, can not be completed for ten days because of the necessity for treating the brain with solutions before exhaustive exploration is made.

Physical Condition Is Questioned.

These developments, lending credence to first beliefs that Schaaf either entered the ring in poor physical condition, or had been suffering an unsuspected organic ailment, overshadowed police investigations that began immediately after the fighter died, still in the coma he was able to shake off only at rare intervals.

First orders were issued for Carnera's arrest to answer homicide charges, but this was quickly changed to interrogation at the district attorney's office. No evidence of any "criminal negligence" was found, according to Assistant District Attorney James P. Daly, after an examination of all concerned, but he added a final decision was reserved until receipt of his medical examiner's full report. In addition to Carnera, his and Schaaf's managers and handlers, the referee and boxing commission officials all were questioned but contributed no new developments.

Gov. Lehman Orders Probe.

From Albany came the direct orders of Gov. Lehman to the New York State Athletic Commission for an investigation into "all the circumstances" in connection with the boxer's death. As a result Billy Cavanaugh, West Point boxing coach, who refereed the match; the judges, William Dunn and Tommy Shortell; Dr. William Walker, commission physician, who examined and passed Schaaf as in perfect condition before the fight, were among those interviewed.

Then to complete the swift-moving cycle of events, legislators in Albany, led by Senator Henry G. Schackno, chairman of the powerful judiciary committee, announced that a movement would be started within a few days to repeal the boxing law under which the game has been conducted here for over ten years.

Tunney and Dempsey Regret Schaaf's Death

Chandler, Ariz., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Gene Tunney, who retired as heavyweight boxing champion in 1928, was deeply affected when informed of the death today of Ernie Schaaf.

"It's too bad such a tragedy had to happen," Tunney said. "I am so sorry. He was a very fine, clean cut young man."

"It would have happened to almost anyone," Tunney declared. "It might have been an aggravation of a former pounding or even a slight twist of the neck.

"Such unfortunate things bring the death rate of boxing into the limelight, but fatalities in this branch of sports do not begin to compare with football."

Los Angeles, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, expressed deep regret today over the death of Ernie Schaaf, but said that "it might have happened in any game."

"Schaaf took the chance that all athletes take and of course I feel very sorry both for his family and Primo Carnera.

"I don't think Ernie was right when he went into the fight and from what I read, I don't think he ever should have gone into the ring. As far as that goes, I don't think his fight with Max Baer did him any good."

BROOKLAND FIVE WINS.

Brookland Boys Club, led by "Squint" McNally, defeated the O'Briens by a score of 42 to 15 in a loosely played game last night.

CARNERA IS BANNED AGAINST SMALL MEN

the bout but remained standing around the ringside, to jeer and shout "fake" while Schaaf first was given emergency treatment by his handler, then carried to his dressing room by Sharkey and two policemen before being removed to the hospital. Dozens crowded into the place where Schaaf stretched out and came away skeptical.

Schaaf's Death Irony of Argument.

The grim irony of it all is that while the shouting was at its height and the argument still raging in the boxing columns, Schaaf, never completely conscious again, was slowly dying, that what seemed strangely suspicious to those around the ringside turned to tragedy outside, that the lethal powers which it has been sought to associate with Carnera's punches over a carefully managed period stood suddenly emphasized, at least in the public mind.

If there was no calculation at any single stage of events, the outcome stands as one of the strangest climaxes to any major event in the history of pugilism. Strangest of all is the position in which it leaves Sharkey, his career already studded with baffling episodes. The champion was on his way to Boston tonight, returning from Florida to attend Schaaf's funeral and, perhaps, reconsider his own future in the ring.

The single point upon which the critics qualified their views today was "what was Schaaf's condition before he went into the ring? Was he in any way unsound or unfit, to an extent where ordinary punches would produce fatal effect?"

Cause of Death May Never Be Known.

"The precise cause of his death never may be known," Joe Williams, sports editor of the New York World-Telegram commented. "The last punch of the fight—that left jab—certainly was not enough in itself to blast him into insensibility. The doctors seem to think it was an accumulation of poundings. They ought to know. If this is so, then Schaaf should never have been permitted to enter the ring, but how was anyone to know?"

Other observers were equally insistent that whatever the exact source, whether it was the effect of an attack of "flue," or not, Schaaf's death was contributed by causes other than the punching he took in less than 37 minutes of combat with Carnera.

Levinsky-Risko Bout Off as Schaaf Tribute

New York, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—The bout between King Levinsky, of Chicago and Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, scheduled for Madison Square Garden on Friday night, has been postponed "as a tribute to Ernie Schaaf," James J. Johnston, boxing official at the Garden, announced late today.

Championship Trophy Monument to Schaaf

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—A monument to Ernie Schaaf, though it does not bear his name, already stands in the lobby of Madison Square Garden.

It is the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight championship trophy, donated jointly to the boxing world by William Muldoon, veteran of the New York State Athletic Commission, and Gene Tunney, upon the latter's retirement as heavyweight champion four years ago.

Schaaf posed as the model for the bronze figure of a boxer that stands atop a heavy marble base, bearing the names of heavyweight champions from John L. Sullivan down through Tunney. Of all the boxers available, Schaaf's perfect proportions, his massive build, alone satisfied the artist.

Indians Battling For Trip to Capital

Cherokee Reservation, N. C., Feb. 14.—In a practice game here today between two tribes of Cherokee Indians who are staging an Indian ball game to select the players who will play as a part of the inaugural sports program in Washington the afternoon of March 5, Will Jessica, better known as "Litle Bear," suffered what is feared to be a fractured skull, caused by a direct hit on the head by a stick in the hands of Little Hummingbird. It was all part of the game, and no penalty or delay occurred.

Daily practice games are being held and the rivalry is intense as only 25 players will be selected for the trip to Washington and there are over 100 men and boys engaging in tryouts.

Chief White Owl will accompany his players and expects to pay his respects to the Big White Chief during his visit. The Cherokee Indians have been invited to join the Tammany Braves in the inaugural parade and probably will accept.

So it begins to appear that when Chief White Owl leads his 25 braves to Washington to commit their Indian Ball at Central Stadium the day before inauguration, District followers of sport are going to be treated to a brand of legalized mayhem such as they have rarely encountered unless they have had some working knowledge of guerrilla warfare. Indian Ball is a primitive lacrosse, with none of the primitive urges of man suppressed.

Tickets are on sale at Spalding's and the inaugural ticket office in the Washington Building. Prices now are 50 cents and $1. After a week they will rise to 60 cents and $1.25.

Proceeds will go to charity.

Hitting the Headpin

BRONSON QUAITES' Bee Quins quintent hung up a new District three-game set record for women's teams in the Washington Ladies League at Columbia last night when they toppled the maples for a score of 1,720. Their best game, 593, is a new season's mark for the loop. Billy Butler's 358 and Polly Sugrue's 353 were high.

Moore, of Holy Trinity, rolled a 368 set and 144 game to lead Section C, Holy Name League, in scoring at Temple. Holy Comforter took team prizes with scores of 592 and 1,891.

Mary Rodgers' bowling featured the Ladies Eastern Star League at Columbia. She turned in a high game of 118 and set of 325. Treaty Oak had a 474 game, with Miriams rolling a 1,353 set.

Lucky Strike took three from B. & O. in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. Dutch Weidman's 389 set was high.

George Mantzouris' 138 game and 344 set were high in the Masonic League at Convention Hall. King David quintet rolled 572 and Harmony had a 1,639 set.

Convention Hall will roll the Happy Five at the Recreation Alleys in Baltimore Sunday. A return match is scheduled Friday week at the hall.

Temple Bowling Alleys will stage a George Washington tournament tonight at 10:30 o'clock, the winner to have his fee paid in the George Washington day tourney at Lucky Strike.

Edgewood rolled 1,666 and 567 to cop the team laurels in the North Washington loop at Silver Spring. Garrett had a 341 set and McCauley a 142 game.

Buck McDonald rolled a 400 set in the Takoma Business Men's League, while Dutch Sherbahan had a 154 game. Fruit Growers Express rolled 613, 608 and 500 for a 1,721 set.

Swann hung up a pair of all-time marks for the Columbia Heights League, a 679 game and 1,884 set, and took two from Cool's Drinks at Arcadia. Sam Simon rolled a 154 game and tied with Perce Wolfe at 408 for set honors.

Sole's 151 and 362 led the Men's Lutheran League at Arcadia. St. Mark's turned in a team game of 580 and set totaling 1,600.

Gordon Scott (Scotty to you) knocked the woodwork setting around Mr. Bill Wood's Lucky Strike Alleys for a couple of frame shacks yesterday in The Washington Post League, turning in a game of 131 and set of 356 to bag the individual prizes. (Wot prizes?) Gothic had a 533 game and 1,544 set in leading the teams.

TITLE IS WON IN OVERTIME THRILLER

Hyattsville Defeats Mt. Rainier, 14-13, on Meade's Toss.

DEVOE MEADE'S successful try from the charity stripe in the third extra period, after the teams had battled to a 13-13 tie in regulation time, enabled Hyattsville High School to nose out Mount Rainier High School, 14-13, and win the Prince Georges County scholastic championship. A large crowd jammed the Hyattsville Armory to see the schools play.

Mount Rainier assumed a 9-5 lead in the first half, with Ziegler doing most of the scoring, but Hyattsville crept up on even terms in the third period and the two battled down the homestretch point for point.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL KILLS AUTO TAG FEE

City to Absorb 50-Cent Levy and Arranges Refunds; Dog Myth Blasted.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 533.

City Councilman Henry O'B. Cooper emerged victorious last night in his fight to have the city absorb the fee of 50 cents on city automobile licenses, and the 1933 license will be at the rate of 20 cents per 100 pounds weight of the car, the same as in 1932.

Councilman Cooper brought out the point that the license ordinance which was adopted January 10 was illegal, since both the city charter and the rules of the council provide that no ordinance assessing taxes may be adopted on the same day it is introduced. Mr. Cooper was upheld in this, and then introduced an amendment striking out certain portions, with the effect of establishing the 1932 basis. The vote on this amendment was: Ayes, Cooper, Davison, Garrett, Herbert and Mayor Ticer; nays, King, Barley, Dwyer and Lawler. Mr. Cooper then introduced a resolution, which was adopted, providing for the refund of 50 cents to each person who has paid his license. Mr. Lawler stated 900 are entitled to refund, which must be made on application.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, addressed the council on the issuance of scrip to aid the unemployment situation.

Mr. Hollenga also brought up the question of alleged discrimination against Alexandria gasoline filling stations by the oil companies which permit the sale of gasoline in certain locations at District of Columbia prices, several cents per gallon lower than the Virginia prices due to the difference in tax. A motion to see what can be done to overcome this discrimination was adopted.

Attorneys Clyde B. Lanham and William P. Moncure, representing the Alexandria Bar Association, appeared with a request that authority be given for certain repairs to the corporation court room, and an appropriation of $550 was made for this purpose, the work to be done under the supervision of the city engineer.

Resolutions were adopted thanking Representative Howard W. Smith for his efforts in regard to obtaining Federal aid for State roads, and in having piling removed from the river front by the Army Engineers.

A communication was received from the Department of Agriculture in response to an inquiry directed by the council, to the effect that the Department does not pay anything for dogs supplied at Beltsville, Md., for experimental purposes. Councilman Lawler stated that the impression had got out that there is a "dog racket" in Alexandria; that Alexandria city employes were having dogs captured and sold to the experimental station for $2.50 each.

ALEXANDRIA POLICE LEAVE TO GET LILLY

Depart After Pollard Signs Papers for Extradition of Slayer.

Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Sergt. Frederick Kaue left Alexandria last night for Columbus, Ohio, to bring back William Kidd, alias Kid Lilly, alias John Gaines, colored, indicted by an Alexandria grand jury for the murder of Sergt. Charles R. McClary on June 20, 1929.

Yesterday Detective James Bayliss and Patrolman Frank Stover went to Richmond and obtained the signature of Gov. John Garland Pollard on extradition papers for Lilly, which will be presented to Gov. White of Ohio. It is understood Lilly had agreed to return to Virginia without the formality of extradition, but it was considered best to have the formalities complied with.

Kid Lilly has proved to be one of the most elusive criminals with whom the Alexandria police have ever dealt. Arrested and held for the authorities of a Virginia county on a charge of shooting a woman, and turned over to two officers, he made a sensational escape from a bus near Danville. He returned to Alexandria, where he procured a pistol he had left with a friend and, when his recapture by Sergts. McClary and Edgar Sims was imminent, he "shot his way out," killing Sergt. McClary and making his escape. Later he was under arrest on a minor charge in Portsmouth, Ohio, but released, and a few hours later the Portsmouth police found the circular from Alexandria describing Lilly.

Lilly also is wanted in Wilson, N. C., for the murder of a policeman, which occurred several years prior to the shooting in Alexandria.

Washington Arts Club Hears House Anecdotes

An evening of interesting experiences and reminiscences by several members of the House of Representatives was afforded members of the Washington Arts Club last night at their annual St. Valentine dinner party.

The guests of honor were Representative and Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois; Representative and Mrs. Albert Johnson, of Washington, and Representative Ruth Pratt, of New York. Interesting stories of the Nation's law-making bodies were related by the representatives.

SINGS TODAY

who will sing at the thirty-fifth annual Maine memorial exercises this afternoon at Fort Myer.

Battleship Maine Exercises Today

Wreath Will Be Placed at Arlington; Observance at Fort Myer.

The thirty-fifth anniversary of the destruction of the U. S. Battleship Maine will be observed this afternoon with exercises at Arlington Cemetery and at Fort Myer.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans will place a wreath, presented by President Hoover, at the base of the Maine shaft in Arlington Cemetery at 12:15 p. m. The exercises at Fort Myer, to be held in the riding hall, will begin at 1:30 p. m. They will be held under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans and will be broadcast.

The exercises will be featured by music from the United States Marine Band, solos from Hazel Arth, contralto, and addresses from William J. Otjen, commander in chief of the U. S. W. V., and Senor Don Oscar B. Cintas, Ambassador from Cuba. Patrick J. Callan, commander of the U. S. W. V. in the District, will be master of ceremonies. Ralph C. Delbert, chaplain at Fort Myer, will give the invocation, and William M. LaRoche, chaplain of the local U. S. W. V., the benediction.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS PLEASE IN 'ESCAPE'

Galsworthy Photo of Penal Reaction Presented at Wardman Theater.

The Columbia Players, before an enthusiastic audience, presented last evening at the Wardman Park Theater, John Galsworthy's "Escape," an engrossing drama in a prologue and nine episodes, treating of the mental tortures of an escaped convict.

In the pivotal role of the hunted man, Robert Miller splendidly carried the difficult task of delineating an ex-captain penned up for manslaughter, and later hounded in his new-found freedom by those whose milk of human kindness had turned sour.

Assisting in developing the gossamer story were Helen Mead, Fred Harriman, Harry Weatherby, Vernon Lyden, B. A. P. Doehrer, Willard Miller, Joe Bourne, Claire Marie Thompson, Margery Rice, Frank E. Jamison, Harold S. Norton, S. Allen Foster, Lois Alexander, Doroth White, Virginia True, N. Graham Fountain, Sue Stamates, Dorothea Lewis, Martha Turner and Steel Kennedy.

It is manifestly impossible here to discuss the excellent work of all of these people, for every one of them was chosen with an eye for both type and ability to represent a different facet of the body politic, and each in his own way greatly adds to the enjoyment of the whole.

The play, which was staged and directed by Orris Holland, is highly dramatic, with sufficient comedy and satire mixed in to make a decidedly worth-while study.

Tonight at 8:30 "Escape" will be repeated by the Players at the Wardman Park Theater, and it is surely worth it! W. A. WHITNEY.

Restaurateurs Today To Confer on Problems

Business problems of the restaurant will be discussed at the United States Chamber of Commerce today when Fred A. Simonsen, of Detroit, president of the National Restaurant Association, and Frank J. Wiffler, of Chicago, secretary, confer with leading operators of the Washington district.

It is expected that more than 200 leading restaurant operators will attend. Bert L. Olmsted, of Olmsted's Grill, and Mrs. Clara May Downey, of the Olney Inn, both of whom are directors of the National Restaurant Association, are active in making arrangements for the meeting.

GRAHAM SAYS
See This One
1932 ESSEX TERRAPLANE
4-DOOR SEDAN

This powerful 6-cylinder car carries our unconditional guarantee. Seldom will you find its equal and certainly not at the price we are quoting. A beautiful tan Duco finish, with 5 red wire wheels. Not a scratch or blemish. The interior is De Luxe in every respect and looks like it's never been sat in. Mechanically—just nicely broken in (5,000 actual miles). We will go the limit to sell this car, since the original owner wants a larger one—a 1933 Graham. We won't urge you to buy, but we do urge you to see this beautiful Terraplane before you buy any car—new or used.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SPEECH ON THE RESOLUTION TO CUT CONGRESSMEN'S SALARIES. (By Representative Thaddeus P. Pettifogger.)

GENTLEMEN, I rise to speak on the resolution to cut the salaries of United States congressmen, and pause that my swelling indignation at this outrageous proposal may not move me to intemperate expression.

Cut the pay of congressmen?

By what petty, low, base and contemptible forces is such an indefensible proposal made? What twisted reasoning, what warped logic makes such a fiendish propostion possible? In what diseased mind can such a debasing idea find comfort?

* * * *

CUT the pay of a congressman?

Am I in my right senses? Or is the suggestion an hallucination bred by an unspeakable nightmare? Do we hear aright, gentlemen, or does such a vile and unpatriotic proposal spring from some trick of the imagination?

* * * *

CUT the pay of United States congressmen?

Would you deprive the lilies of sunshine? Would you deny water to the vineyards? Would you limit the sustenance of the sturdy oak, sop up the dews that nourish the little flowers of yonder hillside?

* * * *

Cut the pay of United States congressmen?

Would you cut the grass from beneath the grazing sheep, burn the corn that sustains the cattle, dry the rippling brooklet that quenches the thirst of the birds of the air, close the petals of the flower in which the bee finds nectar?

I pause for a reply, (Cries of "Attaboy!" "Sic 'em, Prince!" and "Make mine vanilla!")

* * * *

CUT the pay of United States congressmen?

We may approve measures imposing burdensome taxes on the rank and file of the people, we may drain millions from the purses of the poor, we may confiscate the fortunes of the rich, we may countenance the cutting of salaries in all walks of life, we may dam the currents that provide the very life of trade, we may bring employer and employe to the very depths of privation and sacrifice! We may shout for economies throughout the land and stand like the Rock of Gibraltar for a return to the simpler standards of living!

* * * *

WE may sock the rich, suffer the middle classes to wither away and the poor to starve! We may turn the dome of the Capitol upside down, turn the Washington Monument into a memorial to Lenin, dye the beard of Ham Lewis a brilliant yellow, convert the mint into a public swimming pool and fill the historic Potomac with green cheese!

But cut the pay of a United States congressman?

Never! (Cries of "Wotta Man!" "Okay, America!" and "Brother, can you spare a dime?")

PREFERENCE.

Give me the South
And alligators—
It keeps me from Those fancy skaters!

CAN'T PICK WINNERS ALL THE TIME.

Jim Farley, kingfish of the Roosevelt war board, was among those at the Miami Beach dog track the other night, but he had no luck. He bet on the Forgotten Dog.

"President Hoover Will Leave Office in Excellent Health."—Headline. It must make him feel great just to get it over with.

Two Held for Jury On Drug Charges

Man and Girl Bound Over After Alleged Narcotic Layout Is Bared.

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday ordered Carl Belohavek, alias Carl Bello, and Joanne Barclay held for the grand jury on bonds of $4,000 each after they had been given a preliminary hearing on narcotic charges.

The two were arrested by Traffic Bureau Policemen J. R. LeFoe and J. E. Bennett, Belohavek at the Traffic Bureau when he came to report theft of his car, and the girl at an apartment on Twelfth street northwest. They are represented by Attorney Charles Ford.

The officers explained they arrested Belohavek for investigation and then went to his apartment, where, they said, they were admitted by the young woman. She was arrested when an alleged narcotic layout was discovered in the room. Both entered pleas of not guilty.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Who is at fault in a traffic collision? The corporation counsel or a court of law may decide who was to blame in the eyes of the law, but this legal fixation of guilt is inadequate.

Operating a motor vehicle is not an impersonal occupation. There is a moral responsibility which makes every driver responsible for the safety of his passengers, pedestrians and fellow drivers.

Guilt in collisions may be determined by the traffic regulation code, but every one concerned in the accident should study the circumstances and analyze how it may have been prevented. In very few cases is any one entirely at fault.

| | 1932. | 1933. |
|---|---|---|
| Deaths | 14 | 6 |
| Injuries | 450 | 425 |
| Accidents | 963 | 1,030 |

"Be Careful!"

FORMER NEIGHBORS HONOR MEMORY OF JOHN PHILIP SOUSA

Southeast Citizens and Marine Band Pay Tribute to March King.

Residents of Southeast Washington last night honored their former neighbor, John Philip Sousa.

More than 700 persons crowded the auditorium of Buchanan School to hear an elaborate program in tribute to the March King's memory.

Many were turned away, only to return to their homes and hear the program over the radio.

In the presentation every phase of Sousa's life and works received tribute; his musical compositions were played and praised, his life in Washington recounted, his military record reviewed, and his novels and poems mentioned.

Widow Gives Thanks.

His widow was the guest of honor. She thanked the Southeast Citizens Association for the "Evening With Sousa" as she was presented with flowers by its president, G. W. Bell.

The program opened with the stirring bars of "The Washington Post March," played by the Marine Band, which formerly performed to the beat of Sousa's baton, and ended with the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The Estelle Wentworth Opera Group united with the Southeast Glee Club in the singing of selections from "El Capitan" and "The Bride Elect," while the Evelyn Davis Southeast Community Dance Group presented the "Mazurka," from "El Capitan."

Poetry Also Read.

Sousa's connection with the United States Marine Corps was described by Capt. L. A. Dessez, while his life was recounted in a biographical sketch by C. G. Degman. Allan Davis, principal of Roosevelt High School, read some of his poetry, and John B. McGinley, told of his novels and autobiography.

Several of Sousa's marches, including the famous "Semper Fidelis," "High School Cadets" and the "Stars and Stripes Forever" were presented by the Marine Band. Vocal solos also were presented by Helen Marie Koontz and Mabel C. Inman.

W. F. Murphy acted as master of ceremonies. The affair was arranged by the Southeast Citizens Association with the cooperation of the Community Center Department.

Woman Found Hurt Has Memory Lapse

Last Recollection Is About Calling Taxicab; Picked Up Badly Injured.

A woman who is on hospital records as Mrs. Ethel Hunter, 29, and who was found seriously injured lying in the center of the Washington-Leonardtown highway near Clinton, Md., Monday night, was said yesterday to be suffering from a possibly fractured skull, a broken jaw and other injuries at Casualty Hospital. She was unable to tell police how she was hurt.

Insisting that her name was "Mrs. Evelyn Beckett" and that she lives at 1229 N street northwest, the injured woman stated that she had boarded a taxicab and ordered the driver to take her to Benedict, Md. She stated that she had no recollection of leaving Benedict or her purpose in going there.

Records at the hospital show that a woman giving the name of Mrs. Ethel Hunter has received treatment there 14 times.

Lord Marley to Speak Upon Relief for Jews

A reception to Lord Marley, deputy speaker of the British House of Lords, will be held at 8:30 p. m. tonight in the Italian garden of the Mayflower Hotel.

The reception will be given under the auspices of the Ort Congressional Committee, in cooperation with the Washington Jewish community. Lord Marley will speak on the work of the Ort Federation in giving relief to Jews of Eastern Europe.

Hoover Signs Measure Changing Island Name

President Hoover's signature yesterday changed the name of Roosevelt Island in the nearby Potomac to "Theodore Roosevelt Island."

He signed the congressional bill making the switch, done to prevent confusion with the name of the President-elect. The island's former name was Analostan Island.

MAN SHOT IN ROW; ANOTHER IS HUNTED

Victim Wounded in Dispute Over Loan Is Improving in Hospital.

The condition of Gus Mason, 39, who was shot during a loan dispute yesterday in his apartment at 903 New York avenue northwest, was described by Emergency Hospital officials last night as "very satisfactory."

Meanwhile, headquarters detectives were seeking Louis Scharff, 40, who was named by Mason as his assailant, according to police. His alleged assailant escaped after the shooting.

Mason told police Scharff had borrowed money from him on several occasions and sought another loan yesterday. When he was refused, Mason told police, Scharff, who was a distant relative by marriage, drew a gun and fired.

Mason staggered down three flights of stairs and was seen by Philip De Angelo, a barber at 914 New York avenue, who commandeered a taxicab and took him to the hospital. Doctors found Mason had been shot in the chest, the right hip, and his scalp was lecerated.

Residents at the address said they saw a man, answering Scharff's description, as he came down a fire escape. He was wiping blood from his forehead. Police found a blood-stained iron bar in Mason's apartment.

4 in PayRoll Killing Facing Trial Today

Case of Two Others Accused in Watchman's Death Also to Open.

Six men will go on trial today in District Supreme Court on charges of first-degree murder. They will be prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorneys William H. Collins and John J. Sirica. Four of the men, Fewel Workman, Claude Myers, both colored, and Everett Lee Blackwell and Albert Ernest Cash, are charged with killing Einer H. Ecklund, paymaster of the firm that is painting the addition to the House Office Building, in a vain attempt to rob him of a $3,000 pay roll on January 20.

Harry Stumm, who was assistant to Ecklund, was shot at the time, and he is now in Providence Hospital. It is planned to call him as a witness. The case will be tried before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

Joe Goodman and George McKinley Pitmond, both colored, will be tried before Chief Justice A. A. Wheat for the slaying of William Simms, elderly colored night watchman at the Dickey Brothers' feed store in Benning, D. C., January 22.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FROM the office of Mr. Daniel Frohman, dean of American theatrical producers and president of the Actors' Fund of America, in the Lyceum Theater Building, New York, comes the following important bulletin which is herewith reproduced verbatim and in full:

"A big event is scheduled to take place Inaugural Week in behalf of the Actors' Fund of America. A huge benefit is being arranged for Sunday evening, March 5th, on the stage of the Belasco Theatre. This performance will be under the guidance of Daniel Frohman with the assistance of his stage director, Keane Waters.

"One of the outstanding features, already arranged, will be the appearance of Noel Coward and Beatrice Lillie in a one-act skit of Mr. Coward's own writing.

"President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to appear at this entertainment, and effort is being made to present Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and Alfred E. Smith in a one-act skit especially written for this occasion.

"Other distinguished artists who will journey from New York are Cecilia Loftus, Herbert Rawlinson, the star of "When Ladies Meet;" William Faversham, Fannie Hurst, Bert Lytell, the star of William A. Brady's current success, and many others being arranged for."

The veteran film fan, whose recollections hark back—or perhaps I mean "bark" back—to the days of the silent cinema and Strongheart, first of the "thinking" canine actors, with his beautiful dun-colored "wife," Lady Julie, and their numerous progeny, finds it a matter of little difficulty to discover many delightfully reminiscent qualities in "Trailing the Killer," now occupying the screen at Loew's Columbia, as the inaugural attraction under the new Monday-opening policy.

Caesar, son and artistic successor of Rin-Tin-Tin, last of the dog stars to occupy an important place in public esteem, comes nearer being a reincarnated Strongheart than he does the re-created image of his famous daddy.

News of his death from heart failure following a protracted illness comes as a shock to the many Washington friends and former associates of Percy Heath, who died in Hollywood last Thursday at the age of 48.

An associate producer for Paramount at the time of his premature passing, Percy Heath was a veteran of both the theater and the motion picture studios. Having served a valuable novitiate with other legitimate producers, he labored for many years as chief publicist for the late Henry W. Savage, and during that term of service became coauthor of the book of "Sari," one of the most successful operettas in which Mitzi Hajos ever appeared.

Back in the days when Old Skipper Frank P. Morse, the lawbreaker's Nemesis, and the late Ralph Graves occupied this desk, Room 49, of The Post, was Perce's habitual hangout when in Washington—which was frequently, because he liked the town and the town liked him. His gorgeous sense of humor in later years manifested itself in many of the sprightliest and wittiest scenarios that found their way to the screen.

Mr. Heath leaves a widow and one son, Burton.

Vale, old friend.

Another pronouncement which finds its way to this punctilious—accident on any syllable you like, including the first—palladium will also do with a bit of verbatim quoting. To wit:

"Several prominent members of Washington's amusement world are scheduled to be important participants in the Repeal entertainment, to take place Tuesday evening, February 21, at Wardman Park Hotel at 8:30 o'clock.

"Phil Lampkin, conductor of Loew's Fox theater orchestra, will be one of the contributors to the interesting variety performance, which follows the presentation of the motion picture 'A Symphony in Two Flats.' Mr. Lampkin will give a trumpet solo. Through the courtesy of the management, two star acts appearing at the Madrillon will be another attraction.

"Other participants will be Sidney Diebold, violinist; Betty Baum and Edward Dawson, pianists; Charles Wright, accordionist at the Club Michel, and six young women from the Virginia C. Hunter Studio of Dance.

"Seven patronesses, headed by Mrs. John R. Williams, and an arrangements committee, of which Mrs. Arthur O'Brien is chairman, have enlisted the interest and cooperation of leading Washingtonians in behalf of the undertaking.

"The entire proceeds will be devoted to the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform in its work for repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

Pardon the runover heels and the fringe on my cuffs, but I thought the Democratic platform took care of all that!

Carter Barron, chivalrous Southern gentleman that he is, remembered St. Valentine's Day in most generous fashion, earning the undying gratitude of all the sweet tooths directly and indirectly connected with the local dramatic desks. A thoughtful, kindly and appreciated gesture.

While from any point of view "The Green Pastures," at the National, is a remarkable theatrical experience, not the least impressive of its many distinguishing attributes is the booming bass of Hall Johnson's "Celestial Choir," which comes rumbling out through the light drapes with all the richness and power of organ tones.

Speaking of "The Green Pastures"—and who can help it once he has seen the play?—on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Richard B. Harrison, who plays the role of de Lawd, will occupy the pulpit at the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets, at the invitation of the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor.

Mr. Harrison, a former Chautauqua lecturer and reader, will deliver a sermon upon "The Religious Influence of 'The Green Pastures.'"

Come then Frank McGrann and Charlie McClintock, two high-strung Southern gentlemen—with apologies to Sam Galanty—who in the capacity of bustling agents are jointly cooking up (especially Mr. McClintock!) something special for the opening night of Paul Muni in Elmer Rice's "Counsellor-at-Law," at the National, February 27. More of this—much more—a little later.

At the moment I think that's the whistle of the tugboat about to cast off for Baltimore and "Allen Corn."

Or, failing that, a little of Baltimore's alien malt would do!

Zangwill Letters Will Be Published

Widow of Famous British Playwright Making Collection.

Publication of a selection of letters of the late Israel Zangwill, noted British playwright and author, will be made within the next four months, it was announced by his widow, who is visiting in this country.

Mrs. Zangwill has requested that friends of the author having personal letters forward them to her at the Hotel Wellington, New York City. The letters will be returned within the next two or three months, Mrs. Zangwill said.

After February 22 the letters should be addressed to Mrs. Zangwill at Far End, East Preston, Littlehampton, Sussex, England.

INAUGURAL CONCERT PROGRAMS MAPPED BY VARIOUS GROUPS

Only Replacements Now to Be Considered for Part in Parade.

The Marine Band, the Washington Choral Society of 80 members under the direction of Louis Potter, and Chief Joe Lockie (Mad Wolf), famous Indian barytone, will be the featured artists at the promenade concert to be held at the Pan American Union on the night of March 2, according to announcement made yesterday by the Inaugural General Entertainment Committee.

Details of a musical program for this concert were evolved at a meeting yesterday in the Washington Building. The promenade concert is to be open to the public and no cards of admission will be required.

Rotary Friendship House.

The subcommittee on civic clubs, Edwin F. Hill, chairman, has arranged to have a representative of the general entertainment committee address all of the luncheon clubs on inaugural plans between now and March 4. The Rotary Club already has arranged to establish a house of friendship in the Gridiron room at the Willard Hotel for visiting Rotarians from March 2 to March 4. The Kiwanis Club will keep open house at the Washington Hotel both day and night from March 2 to March 6.

Plans for Inaugural Sunday, March 5, are progressing rapidly. Miss Mary E. Hughes, of the general entertainment committee, yesterday addressed the association of Congregational ministers. The Presbyterian ministers of the city have named the Rev. Henry B. Wooding, of the Eckington Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Freeley Rohrer, of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, to represent that denomination in the Inaugural Sunday movement. Dr. Charles Wayne Buchanan, associate pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, has been nominated for the same purpose by the Baptist ministers.

Women's City Club Offer.

Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, of the Women's City Club, yesterday placed at the disposal of the inaugural committee on distinguished guests the facilities of that organization for the entertainment of inaugural visitors.

The Roosevelt inaugural parade, except for such changes as may be brought about by cancellations between now and March 4, is a closed affair, according to announcement made by the parade committee, Col. E. M. Watson, chairman. Applications to participate in the line of march already received and accepted occupy all of the time allotted to this feature of the Inaugural Day ceremonies, so that there is no chance of organizations getting in now except as replacements.

Thomas and Hoeppel To Address Veterans

Misses Aim

Sledge-Hammer Wielder Strikes Man's Head Instead of Spike.

Sledge-hammer wielders sometimes miss.

Jesse Trout, 50, of Riverdale, Md., a mechanic at the Washington Terminal roundhouse, can testify to this. He is in Emergency Hospital suffering from a skull fracture as a result of a misdirected blow.

According to Fifth Precinct police, Trout was holding the spike while Ernest L. Sorrelmer, another mechanic, was driving it through a piece of steel. Trout, it is believed, leaned too far over. A blow from the hammer missed its mark, striking him on the head. At the hospital his condition was pronounced as undetermined.

GOOD YEAR SHOWN BY PRESBYTERIANS

Report Says Too Liberal Aid Has Tended to Weaken Those Receiving It.

Despite financial retrenchment and physical hardships suffered last year, the foreign work of all Presbyterian and Reformed Boards was well maintained and in some instances considerable progress was made, Dr. C. S. Cleland, of Philadelphia, said yesterday at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Alliance of Reformed Churches at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Salaries of missionaries have been cut from 10 to 25 per cent, and similar reductions have been made in administrative expense, Dr. Cleland said.

$2,495,515 In Benefits.

Speaking on the "magnitude of the task of pensioning ministers," the Rev. Dr. Robert Laird, of Toronto, Ontario, said that the seven American denominations represented in the Alliance bestowed annual benefits during the past fiscal year totaling $2,495,515. This sum was distributed among 7,868 beneficiaries. The total reserve or endowment fund available for present and future pensions is $43,277,058 and the number of ministers on the rolls totaled 19,978.

An advance of nearly $6,000,000 in reserve funds in the last two years signifies, Dr. Laird said, the determination of the churches, although under severe financial strain, to maintain unimpaired the permanent basis of their funds.

Report on History.

Dr. Frank Baird, of Pictou, Nova Scotia, who presented the annual report of the committee on church history and theology, told the meeting that a "constructive note is evidenced in the works in the field of theology that appeared in America last year.

The extension of student aid only to those who are doing their best to help themselves was recommended in the report of the committee on Christian education and literature, given by the Rev. Dr. James E. Clarke, of Nashville, Tenn.

Mall Carpenters Return to Work

Truce Is Declared Pending Department's Rule on $11 Daily Wage.

With practically all union carpenters back at their work on the Federal building program in the Mall, a truce existed last night between subcontractors and the carpenters in the wage dispute.

A move has already begun for the Labor Department decision of the pay scale. Briefs are in preparation by attorneys for both sides.

CONSTRUCTION FIRM AGREES TO PAY ALL INVESTMENT CLAIMS

Bride Wins Third Victory in Conciliation of Wage Disputes.

No further recommendations for penalizing the Industrial Engineering & Construction Co., of Washington, will be made by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride providing each former workman makes application for return of his investment in the Anacostia realty development is paid in full in accordance with the contractor's promise.

Yesterday officials of the construction organization offered to turn over to Mr. Bride checks for each of the thirteen former workmen who wanted to cash in on their investments, but he insisted that they make the repayments.

Wrote Letters to Thirteen.

Mr. Bride then wrote letters to the thirteen mechanics and told them when and where to collect the other half of wages due them under the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage act.

The four workmen who contend that they are carpenters but were hired on the Kenilworth School project as laborers, were advised by the corporation counsel that they would be allowed 30 days to file suit for the difference in wages. Meanwhile, Mr. Bride will hold back enough of the contractor's money to pay them if they win judgements.

Promised to Pay Wages.

Officials of the contracting firm have promised to pay all wages on the Kenilworth job in cash from now until the building is completed despite the fact that all fourteen of the present employes and executives stated they are satisfied with investing half of their wages in an undeveloped tract of land.

Settlement of this case is the third conciliation victory for Mr. Bride, who has previously enforced the Bacon-Davis act without resort to court on the W. P. Rose Co. and the A. Lloyd Goode Corporation, North Carolina contracting organizations.

At the annual meeting of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. in New York yesterday the following directors were reelected:

E. C. Graham, John Poole, Lloyd B. Wilson, Marshal D. Sedam, Philip O. Coffin, Robert V. Fleming, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, Merle Thorpe and William W. Everett, of Washington, and Walter S. Gifford and Eugene S. Wilson, of New York.

Theft of Clarinet Charged to Student

An eighteen-year-old student of the McKinley Manual Training School was placed on probation for one year yesterday when he was found guilty of the theft of a clarinet from the music room of the school.

The boy, Claude Hawk, told Judge John P. McMahon he took the instrument to practice.
